

FAQ Sheet for calculating your notice period

3-Day Notice Period:

Beginning Date: the first non-weekend, non-judicial holiday after the day of service of the notice.

Ending Date: the Third non-weekend, non-judicial holiday including your Beginning Date.

What if I served the Notice on a Friday? The notice commences the first non-weekend day after. So, in this case the notice commences on Monday and continues through Wednesday as long as there is not a court holiday in between.

What if there is a court holiday within my Notice period? That doesn't count as one of your three days. You will skip that day and count only Three Non-weekend, Non-Judicial-Holiday days.

What if I had to Post and Mail my notice? Then the Beginning Date must be the later of when you posted or mailed. So, if you are planning to post and then drop the Notice in the mail the next day, make sure the Beginning Date on your notice reflects that and is the later of the two days.

30-Day Period:

Beginning Date: the First Calendar day after service

Ending Date: 30th Calendar, non-weekend, non-holiday Day after and including your Beginning Date.

What if I served the Notice on a Friday? Since the 30 day period includes weekends your 30 days would begin on Saturday.

What if there is a holiday within my 30-Day period? That's ok, they still count as one of the 30 days as long as the holiday is not the Ending date.

What if my 30-Day period ends on a Judicial Holiday or a weekend day? A holiday or weekend day cannot be the Ending date of your 30 day period. Skip that date and use the next non-weekend, non-holiday as your ending date.
