Ken P. DiCairano leads the Business Owner Advisory Services practice for City National Bank and RBC Rochdale, where he is responsible for guiding the firm's national strategy for advising private business owners. Based in New York City, his work centers on helping entrepreneurs optimize their business transition strategy through proactive exit planning and deal advisory.

Mr. DiCairano and his team advise entrepreneurs, their families, and their trusted advisors on all exit options, including mergers & acquisitions, management buyouts, employee stock ownership plans (ESOPs), recapitalizations, and public offerings as well as family business succession. His practice develops innovative content and delivers customized insights to help business owners navigate the complexities of a business exit.

Prior to joining RBC Rochdale Bank, Mr. DiCairano spent 12 years at J.P. Morgan, working exclusively with private business owners. He most recently served as the Executive Director for the Eastern U.S. in the firm's Private Business Advisory practice.

Mr. DiCairano is a Chartered Financial Analyst[®] charter holder and holds the Certified Exit Planning Advisor (CEPA[®]) and Certified Mergers & Acquisitions Advisor (CM&AA[®]) designations. He previously earned his bachelor's degree in Economics and Psychology from Dartmouth College.
