Food Stamps

What is it? A program that gives individuals and families a debit card to buy food. Everyone that buys and eats meals together is in the food stamp household. Each month, the household’s food stamp benefits are put onto the household’s food stamp card.

Am I eligible? The household’s monthly income cannot be more than 130% of the federal poverty limit. If you have income over the limit, you may still qualify if someone in your household is elderly or disabled. There is no requirement that the household have children.

To receive food stamps, adults between the ages of 18 and 50 who are physically and mentally able to work must work, be in job training, or a combination of these up to 80 hours each month. If there are no children in the household, your food stamps will stop if you do not meet this requirement more than three months in a 36-month period. Exceptions can be made if you show a good reason.

Emergency situations: You may be eligible to receive food stamps within a few days of turning in an application if you meet certain income and resource requirements.

Ohio Works First (OWF)

What is it? OWF is a cash benefit to help meet financial needs of children and parents. You must meet with a caseworker and sign a self sufficiency contract that explains any work and other requirements you need to complete each month. The contract also explains your rights. It is important that you read and understand this agreement.

Am I eligible? OWF benefits are available for families with children who have no income or whose income is below 50% of the federal poverty level.

Exceptions:
- Children living with guardians other than their parents may be eligible for child-only OWF benefits. The 36-month time limit does not apply to child-only benefits.
- Women who are at least six months pregnant may be eligible for individual assistance.

Time limits: After getting OWF benefits for 36 months, they will stop. However, you may still be able to get additional months if you qualify for a hardship or good cause extension. You will need to apply for an extension and list all of the barriers you are facing that make it difficult for you to work.
Prevention, Retention, and Contingency (PRC) Program

What is it? A one-time cash benefit for families in an emergency situation. Some examples include:
- Rent or mortgage payments, security deposits
- Property taxes and home repairs
- Emergency shelter or temporary housing
- Bus passes (if necessary for work, school, training, or job search)
- Driver’s license reinstatement (if necessary for work)
- Utility payments
- Car repairs (if necessary for work)

Am I eligible? PRC is available for families with a minor child in the household, but may also be available for an individual who is pregnant or who is a non-custodial parent of a minor child. Normally, a household can only get PRC once in a 12-month period.

Title XX Child Care

What is it? Program offering lower cost child care services

Am I eligible? Eligible families must have income below 130 percent of the federal poverty level when they first apply. Once enrolled, the income limit increases to 300 percent of the federal poverty level. To be eligible, a parent must be working, attending school or a training program, or participating in a work program through the County Job and Family Services office. Also, families with income above 100 percent of the federal poverty level must pay a co-payment to the child care provider, which varies by income.

Exception: Homeless families, including those living in shelters, can receive child care without meeting these requirements

Medicaid

What is it? Medicaid provides health insurance to individuals with low income, children, pregnant women, older adults and individuals with disabilities. Most eligible individuals will be enrolled in Medicaid managed care plans. These include CareSource, Molina, and others. If eligible for Medicaid, individuals with disabilities and chronic conditions may also qualify for care in their homes rather than in long-term care facilities, hospitals, or intermediate care facilities.

Am I eligible? Eligible individuals must meet financial requirements, which vary depending on the type of Medicaid program. If found eligible, most people with Medicaid can get medical care at no cost. However, disabled individuals who are working may have monthly premiums for services.

Some examples of financial requirements:
- Uninsured children in families with income up to 206% of the federal poverty level
- Insured children in families with income up to 156% of the federal poverty level
- Pregnant women in families with income up to 200% of the federal poverty level
- Families with income up to 90% of the federal poverty level
- Low-income individuals with income up to 138% of the federal poverty level
- Disabled working individuals with income up to 250% of the federal poverty level
Immigrant Eligibility for Benefits

Undocumented immigrants are not generally eligible for benefits (except emergency Medicaid). However, Refugees, Asylees, and Legal Permanent Residents may be eligible for benefits. Also, children born in the United States are citizens, so their parents' immigration status does not stop them from being eligible.

Only those applying for benefits for themselves need to provide their social security numbers. When a parent applies ONLY for his or her children, the parent does not need to provide a social security number. NEVER provide a false social security number to the Department of Job and Family Services. As long as you do not provide a false social security number, there is no reason the Department of Job and Family Services should contact immigration officials.

Immigrants who do not qualify for Medicaid can have emergency medical bills paid under the Alien Emergency Medical Assistance (AEMA) program. The bill must have been for treating an emergency medical condition, including labor and delivery.

Medicare Premium Assistance Programs

What are these? If you are low-income and eligible for Medicare, Medicaid may pay for your Medicare premiums and co-payments. There are four different programs: QMB, SLMB, QI-1, and QDWI.

Am I eligible? To qualify for a Medicare Premium Assistance Program, you must be enrolled in Medicare Part A (or Part B for QMB applicants) and have limited income and resources. QDWI applicants must meet additional requirements. The family’s size and income level are used to determine an individual's eligibility.

Social Security Benefit Programs

Medicare

What is it? Medicare is the federal health insurance program for people aged 65 and older, certain younger people with disabilities, and people with End-Stage Renal Disease. If you are eligible for Social Security benefits (including disability benefits), you may apply for Medicare. There are three basic parts to Medicare:

Medicare Part A covers inpatient hospital stays, care in a skilled nursing facility, hospice care, and some home health care. Part A also helps pay for durable medical equipment, such as a hospital bed or wheelchair.

Medicare Part B covers certain doctors' services, outpatient care, medical supplies, and preventive services. These include physical, occupational, and speech therapies, as well as durable medical equipment.

Medicare Part D helps individuals pay for prescription medications. Individuals pay a monthly premium and a low co-payment for each prescription filled.

For questions about Medicare or for help in selecting coverage, you can contact the Ohio Senior Health Insurance Information Program (OSHIIP) at 1-800-686-1578.

Low Income Subsidy (LIS) (“Extra Help”)

What is it? The Low Income Subsidy (LIS) provides help in paying for the Medicare Part D monthly premium, annual deductible, coinsurance, and copayments. Also, individuals enrolled in the Extra Help program do not have a gap in prescription drug coverage (known as the Medicare "donut hole").

The LIS is available for individuals who have limited income and assets. Individuals who receive LIS automatically include those (1) enrolled in both Medicaid and Medicare, (2) receiving Supplemental Security Income (SSI), and (3) who qualify for a Medicare Premium Assistance Program.

Social Security Disability Insurance (SSDI)

What is SSDI? SSDI is monthly income for disabled individuals who have worked enough qualifying quarters to be eligible. The monthly benefit does not depend on income or resources.

Supplemental Security Income (SSI)

What is SSI? SSI is monthly income for individuals with low income and resources who are disabled, blind, or age 65 or older.

If you return to work or if you have a change in income, resources, marital status, or living arrangements you need to contact your local Social Security office. If you do not, you may have an overpayment that will need to be paid back.

Applying for Federal Benefits
(Medicare, LIS, SSDI, SSI)

How do I apply? To apply for Medicare, LIS, SSDI, or SSI, contact your local Social Security office. You can apply for benefits by telephone, in-person at your local Social Security office, or online (except for some SSI applications).
