Official Blue Light Tartan Register of Fabric Donors

The Blue Light Tartan is more than just a fabric, it is a symbol of unity, respect, and gratitude for the extraordinary individuals who serve and protect our communities every day. Woven in colours that honour the dedication of our emergency and volunteer services, civil service, armed forces, and their families, this tartan carries with it the stories of courage, compassion, and commitment that define the Blue Light family.

This register proudly records the generosity of members of the public, businesses, and organisations who have donated linear metreage of Blue Light Tartan fabric. Their contributions directly reduce the cost of producing garments from this cloth, making it more accessible for those who wish to wear it with pride, whether in service, in support, or in remembrance.

Every metre donated is a tangible act of kindness, helping to ensure that the Blue Light Tartan can be worn widely as a visible sign of solidarity. By contributing to this initiative, our donors have not only supported the creation of garments but have also strengthened the bond between the community and the people who dedicate their lives to keeping us safe.

We extend our heartfelt thanks to each donor listed within these pages. Your generosity weaves together more than threads, it weaves together people, purpose, and pride.

Together, we honour service. Together, we wear the Blue Light Tartan.
