

Chris Rossing

Firefighter / Paramedic
Graphic Designer

Chris Rossing is a dedicated firefighter and paramedic serving the city of Benbrook, where he has worked since 2013 and held the position of lieutenant as of 2015. Before this, Chris spent four years as a firefighter and paramedic in Pantego. Raised in the Dallas-Fort Worth metroplex, he completed his training at the Weatherford Fire Academy and earned his paramedic certification through the Training Division.

Married to his wife, Amy, since 1999, Chris is proud of their three sons: Evan, a firefighter in Forney; Liam, currently training at the Fire Academy; and Keaton, a high school student aspiring to join the fire academy next year.

Outside of his professional life, Chris enjoys daily workouts, fishing, hiking, drawing, painting, playing guitar, and pickleball. The family shares a passion for travel, having explored the United States and fifteen other countries. Recently, Chris has ventured into multimedia and graphic arts, embracing his artistic interests with a commitment to continuous learning.
