Information on the EU Carbon Border Adjustment Mechanism (CBAM)

The European Union will introduce the Carbon Border Adjustment Mechanism (CBAM) in 2026 to account for CO₂ emissions embedded in certain imported goods. The aim is to promote climate-friendly production both within and outside the EU.

For companies, this means that additional CO₂-related charges may apply when importing certain products. As the final calculation methods and rates are still being defined by the EU, it is currently not possible to determine the exact cost impact.

Once the official regulations are published, we will provide transparent information regarding implementation and any resulting price adjustments.

We kindly ask for your understanding that we will have to pass on CBAM-related costs to our customers and assure you that we will handle these as fairly and transparently as possible.
