Catechism Corner by Kacey Carey, DRE

Despite having witnessed many miracles, the apostles still doubted Christ. They were incredulous as Jesus strove to reconnect with them on the water. After his solitude in prayer, shortly before dawn, Jesus walks on the lake towards their boat. The terrified apostles say, "It is a ghost", not recognizing him. But knowing this, Jesus immediately says, "It is I, take courage, do not be afraid". Astoundingly Peter, doubts and asks, "if it is you, command me to come". Initially Peter walks on the water, then becomes afraid of the wind and begins to sink. Like many of us who doubt Jesus' ability to resolve our problems in the storms of life, we sink in despair. Jesus immediately catches Peter and saves him and us, although chastising with "Oh ye of little faith." The storms of life can include friends who question our faith, relatives who fall away or any other crisis situation. We sometimes lose our way, doubt or can not think in the moment of the right thing to say. But in all troubled times, Jesus is there to calm our anxieties, to heal, to restore. Christ's ever presence symbolizes faith and trust in God amid challenges. As with most miracles, Jesus' divine authority over nature signifies his authority over us. It symbolizes the theme of salvation and heavenly intervention in human affairs. To sum it all up, the apostles' worship and say, "Truly you are the son of God." Do we have to wait for a miracle before we strengthen our faith?

"A miracle does not take place contrary to nature but rather contrary to our knowledge of nature." St Augustine (354-430)

Rincón de Catecismo por Kacey Carey, DRE

A pesar de haber presenciado muchos milagros, los apóstoles aún dudaban de Cristo. Se mostraban incrédulos mientras Jesús intentaba llegar hasta ellos caminando sobre el agua. Tras un tiempo de oración en soledad, poco antes del amanecer, Jesús camina sobre el lago hacia su barca. Aterrorizados y sin reconocerlo, los apóstoles exclaman: «¡Es un fantasma!». Pero Jesús, consciente de ello, les dice de inmediato: «Soy yo; tened valor, no temáis». Sorprendentemente, Pedro duda y pide: «Si eres tú, mándame ir hacia ti». Al principio, Pedro camina sobre el agua, pero luego teme al viento y comienza a hundirse. Al igual que muchos de nosotros, que dudamos de la capacidad de Jesús para resolver nuestros problemas en medio de las tormentas de la vida, nos hundimos en la desesperación. Jesús sostiene a Pedro al instante y lo salva —y nos salva a nosotros también—, aunque le reprende diciendo: «¡Hombre de poca fe!». Las tormentas de la vida pueden manifestarse a través de amigos que cuestionan nuestra fe, familiares que se alejan o cualquier otra situación de crisis. A veces perdemos el rumbo, dudamos o no encontramos las palabras adecuadas en el momento preciso. Sin embargo, en los momentos difíciles, Jesús está presente para calmar nuestras ansiedades, sanarnos y restaurarnos. La presencia constante de Cristo simboliza la fe y la confianza en Dios frente a los desafíos. Como ocurre con la mayoría de los milagros, la autoridad divina de Jesús sobre la naturaleza refleja su autoridad sobre nosotros; simboliza la salvación y la intervención celestial en los asuntos humanos. Finalmente, los apóstoles lo adoran y proclaman: «Verdaderamente eres el Hijo de Dios». ¿Acaso debemos esperar a que ocurra un milagro para fortalecer nuestra fe? «Un milagro no sucede en contra de la naturaleza, sino en contra de lo que conocemos de la naturaleza». — San Agustín (354-430)
