

SPECIES

CYREAN

"Within the vastness of the Beyond, the Cyreans have shown themselves to be the societal architects of the cosmos. With a wisdom that transcends the ages, they challenge the boundaries of the Beyond, while remaining ever mindful of the fragile strands that connect all."

— Audible-03, Far-Flung Chronicler

Summary

The Cyreans, the great minds of the Hegemony, are an imposing yet soft-spoken species. They live long lives and have prodigious memories, which provides them with exceptional insight into the past. However, their reluctance to act in the face of new circumstances and their slow pace of change often leaves them behind the curve of progress.

The Mind of the Hegemony

The Cyreans have instilled their passion for knowledge and governance into their creation and administration of the many planet-states that make up the Hegemony.

Their general fascination with the intellect has led them to explore the realm of psionics, making them early pioneers in the space. Yet, despite their affinity for the powers of the mind, many Cyreans view psionics as a mere exchange of energy that offers little advancement in the pursuit of true knowledge.

Cyrean Traits

Mind Over Matter: Cyreans are inherently more gifted in the manipulation of psionic forces.

Hardy Constitution: Due to their species' soft and malleable bodies, Cyreans have a natural resilience to physical harm.

Natural Analytics: Cyreans have a natural talent for analyzing complex situations and uncovering hidden clues.

Focused Thought: Having tempered the power of the mind, Cyreans can exercise great discipline to focus their minds and block out distractions.