Food for Thought: When God Says, “Recalculating”

Whenever I drive with the GPS switched on, a voice tells me which way to turn so that I can arrive at the destination I entered. When everything works properly—and when I follow the directions—the GPS leads me where I need to go.

Of course, several things can interfere with the journey. I may have entered the wrong address. There may be construction, traffic, an accident, or an unexpected detour. Sometimes, however, the problem is simply that I choose not to follow the directions. When that happens, the GPS does not become angry. It does not abandon me on the side of the road. Instead, it calmly announces: “Recalculating.” Then it finds another route to bring me back toward my destination.

Our spiritual lives often work in a similar way. We are all traveling toward an eternal destination: the house of our heavenly Father. God has given us a spiritual GPS—the “God-Provided Spirit,” the Holy Spirit—who speaks within our hearts, guides our decisions, warns us of danger, and directs us along the path that leads to God.

Yet we do not always listen. Sometimes we enter the wrong destination by making success, money, pleasure, power, or popularity the center of our lives. Sometimes we ignore the prompting of the Holy Spirit because another road appears easier or more attractive. Sometimes we know exactly what God is asking of us, but we stubbornly choose to travel in the opposite direction.

The beautiful message of today’s readings is that God does not abandon us when we take a wrong turn. In His mercy, He says to us: “Recalculating.”

God never condones evil, but neither does He cease loving the sinner. The Book of Wisdom describes Him as a God who is just, yet merciful; powerful, yet patient; strong, yet lenient. God gives His children time to recognize their mistakes, repent, and return to the right road.

The psalm proclaims: “Lord, You are good and forgiving.” God is merciful and gracious, slow to anger and rich in kindness. No matter how far we have wandered, the road back to Him remains open.

St. Paul reminds us that we are weak and do not always know how to pray as we ought. But the Holy Spirit comes to the aid of our weakness. Even when our hearts are confused, wounded, or overwhelmed, the Spirit intercedes for us and directs us toward the will of God.

In the Gospel, Jesus tells the parable of the wheat and the weeds. The good seed and the weeds grow together in the same field. This reflects the world in which we live. Good and evil exist side by side. Light and darkness struggle within society, within our families, and even within our own hearts.

We naturally ask: Why does God allow evil? Why does He allow violence, war, disease, tragedy, injustice, and the suffering of innocent people? Why does He not immediately uproot everything that is evil?

Jesus teaches us that God is patient because He sees what we cannot see. If the weeds are pulled up too quickly, the wheat may also be damaged. God allows time for conversion, repentance, healing, and growth. The person who appears to be a weed today may, through grace, become fruitful wheat tomorrow.

God permits evil, but God never causes evil. Much of the suffering in our world comes from human beings freely choosing roads that lead away from God—roads of selfishness, hatred, greed, revenge, violence, and indifference. But evil never has the final word. God can bring good even out of tragedy. He can bring courage out of fear, compassion out of suffering, reconciliation out of division, holiness out of weakness, and new life out of death.

The end of the story has already been written: Good triumphs over evil. God triumphs over sin. Christ triumphs over death.

Our task is to help write the middle of the story. We do that by listening to the Holy Spirit. We do it by becoming good seed in a field filled with weeds. We do it by becoming leaven that quietly transforms the world around us. We do it by choosing forgiveness instead of resentment, charity instead of selfishness, truth instead of falsehood, and hope instead of despair.

There will be roadblocks. There will be accidents, detours, disappointments, suffering, and temptation. At times, we will make wrong turns. Yet the God-Provided Spirit remains with us. Through prayer, Sacred Scripture, the Sacraments, the wisdom of the Church, and the voice of a properly formed conscience, the Holy Spirit continues to say:

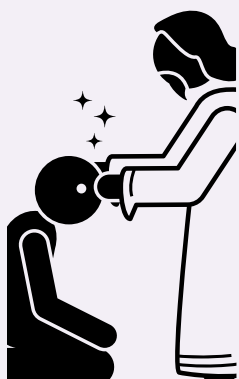

“Turn here.” “Forgive this person.” “Leave that sin behind.” “Come back to Confession.” “Trust God.” “Do not be afraid.”

And whenever we wander, God’s mercy begins recalculating the route home. The question is not whether we have ever taken a wrong turn. We all have. The real question is whether we will listen when the Holy Spirit directs us back toward God.

Questions for Reflection ~ When I encounter evil and suffering, do I lose faith, or do I ask the Holy Spirit to strengthen me? What wrong turns have I made in my spiritual life? Am I listening to the guidance of the God-Provided Spirit? How can I become good seed, light, and leaven for the people God places along my path?

No matter where we are on the journey, God has not abandoned us. His mercy is still guiding us, His Spirit is still speaking, and the destination remains the same: the loving heart and eternal home of our Father.

Weeds Among the Wheat

Weeds are plants that shouldn't be there. They use the sun and water that the good plants need. Have you ever helped pick weeds in the garden? In today's parable Jesus tells about a man who lets the weeds grow along with the wheat until harvest time, so that the good plants don't get pulled up along with the weeds.

The weeds represent the bad people, who will go to Hell at the final judgement. God lets them stay alive as long as the good people. He wants to give sinners lots of time to repent so that they can go to Heaven instead.

All the readings today are about God's mercy. God is the most powerful of all, but instead of destroying sinners He wants to give them more chances. When you think about it, you will realize God has already been merciful to all of us- because we have all sinned. We should thank God for His mercy, and if we do sin again we should show Him we are sorry by going to Confession.
