A Prayer for Labor Day

On this weekend, when we rest from our usual labors, loving Father, we pray for all who shoulder the tasks of human labor—in the marketplace, in factories and offices, in the professions, and in family living. We thank you, Lord, for the gift and opportunity of work; may our efforts always be pure of heart, for the good of others and the glory of your name. We lift up to you all who long for just employment and those who work to defend the rights and needs of workers everywhere. May those of us who are now retired always remember that we still make a valuable contribution to our Church and our world by our prayers and deeds of charity. May our working and our resting all give praise to you until the day we share together in eternal rest with all our departed in your Kingdom, where you live and reign Father, Son, and Holy Spirit, one God, forever and ever. Amen.

Food for Thought: What Would Jesus Do? — Putting On the Mind of Christ

During my deacon year, I chose one theme to guide my preaching, teaching, and parish activities throughout the year: “What Would Jesus Do?”

It may sound like a simple question, but it asks much more of us than simply avoiding sin or trying to be “good people.” To ask What would Jesus do? means that we must become true disciples—disciplined learners of Jesus Christ. St. Paul tells us that we are called to have “the mind of Christ” (1 Corinthians 2:16).

To have the mind of Christ, we first have to know Christ. We come to know Him through the Scriptures, especially the Gospels. We watch how Jesus treats people. We listen to His words. We notice His compassion for the suffering, His mercy toward sinners, His patience with the weak, His forgiveness of those who hurt Him, and His courage in challenging those who were leading others away from God.

Jesus never acted simply for His own convenience. His concern was always: What is best for this person? What will lead this person closer to the Father? That same question lies at the heart of this Sunday’s readings.

The prophet Ezekiel reminds us that we have a responsibility for one another. Faith can never become merely, “My relationship with God is my own business.” Yes, each of us must take responsibility for our own choices, sins, and relationship with God. But Christianity also teaches us that we belong to one another.

We are a Body. If one person wanders, the Christian response is not gossip, condemnation, or indifference. It is loving concern. St. Paul expresses it beautifully: “Love is the fulfillment of the law.” If we truly love another person, we want what is spiritually good for them. Love does not mean approving everything someone does. Sometimes love comforts. Sometimes love forgives. Sometimes love encourages. And sometimes genuine love must gently challenge.

Jesus gives us this very pattern in the Gospel. If someone sins against us or is walking away from what is right, Jesus does not tell us to embarrass them publicly, post about them, talk behind their back, or immediately write them off. He says: Go to the person first.

- Speak personally.
- Speak honestly.
- Speak lovingly.

If that does not work, involve one or two others—not to create sides, but to seek wisdom, reconciliation, and healing. Only afterward does the larger community become involved. Notice the goal: not winning an argument, but winning back a brother or sister. That distinction matters. Before correcting someone else, I must first allow Christ to correct me. I must ask: Am I speaking because I truly love this person, or because I want to prove that I am right? Am I concerned about their soul, or about my pride? Am I speaking with mercy, remembering how many times God has forgiven me?

None of us can approach another person with a “holier-than-thou” attitude. We are all sinners walking toward God together. Some days one of us may stumble; another day it may be someone else. The Christian life means helping one another get back on the road that leads toward God. And this is why Jesus ends the Gospel by speaking about prayer: “Where two or three are gathered together in my name, there am I in the midst of them.”

Jesus must be in the middle of our conversations, our disagreements, our families, our parish, and our relationships.

- Before speaking, pray.
- Before correcting, pray.
- Before reacting, pray.
- Before deciding what someone else deserves, ask: “Lord, give me Your mind. Give me Your heart. What would You do?”

If we truly learn to ask that question every day, we will become more compassionate without becoming indifferent to truth, more merciful without ignoring responsibility, and more courageous without becoming self-righteous. The world does not simply need more people who know about Jesus. It needs disciples who have spent so much time with Jesus that they begin to think like Him, speak like Him, forgive like Him, serve like Him, and love like Him. So this week, in every conversation and every difficult situation, ask one simple but demanding question: What would Jesus do?

Then ask for the grace to do it.

WE CAN LEARN FROM THE LIFE OF BLESSED FREDERIC THAT IT IS IMPORTANT TO DISCUSS THE FAITH WITH PEOPLE, BOTH THOSE WHO CAN HELP US AND THOSE WE CAN HELP. BUT WE ALSO LEARN THAT JUST TALKING ISN'T ENOUGH. WE HAVE TO ACT, TO BE CHARITABLE LIKE CHRIST WAS AS WELL.
