

Color Cover: Frida Kahlo's Self-portrait with Thorn Necklace and Hummingbird, 1940

Mexican artist, Frida Kahlo's (1907-1954) unique approach to her art reflected her realities as an artist and a woman in a time when women were not expected to be bold and expressive. A woman with desires and adventure in spite of personal tragedies, Kahlo painted her perspective on life through her lens. She was unapologetic about expressing the extremes of sensuality and depression through symbolism using nature and most of all her face.

"I paint flowers so they will not die." -Frida Kahlo
