A CELEBRATION OF THE LIFE OF

ERIC SALTER

11 MAY 1963 ~ 28 AUGUST 2026

ORDER OF SERVICE

FOR JASON

The music has faded to silence tonight,
The world has grown heavy and still,
For thirty-four years he was your guiding light,
A void that no other can fill.

From the snows of Toronto where promises grew,
To the gold on your finger he wore,
The doctor who healed was the heartbeat of you,
And now that sweet rhythm's no more.

To lose your true soulmate, your anchor, your home,
Brings a grief that words cannot sustain,
But Jason, look up, for you are not alone,
We are here to help carry the pain.

For thirty long years I have stood by your side,
Through the highs and the turns of the track,
And now in the dark where the teardrops collide,
My friendship will hold your world back.

So grieve for your Eric, lean into the tears,
Let the love that you shared pull you through,
The gold may be heavy with sorrow these years,
But your friends are right here holding you.
