Readings

St. Augustine Hymnal: 947

Quote of the Week

"Hope has two daughters; their names are Anger and Courage. Anger at the way things are and Courage to see that they do not remain as they are"

—Saint Augustine

32nd Sunday in Ordinary Time

"Resplendent and unfading is wisdom, and she is readily perceived by those who love her and found by those who seek her. She hastens to make herself known in anticipation of their desire; Whoever watches for her at dawn shall not be disappointed, for he shall find her sitting by his gate." (Wis 6:12-14)

PRAYER CORNER

Pope's Prayer Intention for September:

Let us pray for the proper use of wealth, that not succumbing to the temptation of selfishness, it may always be put at the service of the common good and solidarity of those who have less.

In Word & Deed

32nd Sunday in Ordinary Time

In a homily about the afterlife, the pastor spoke about the doubts he had when, as a young man, he was trying to figure out the mysteries of God and whether or not heaven really existed. His doubts all but vanished when he attended the funeral visitation of his friend's father. As everyone turned to leave, the wife of the deceased man kissed him and said with great conviction and certainty, "Bye for now." Something in her voice and in her tone answered his questions and doubts, assuring him of God's existence and love. That small witness to faith changed his life.

This is a familiar Gospel parable. Sometimes we think it is simply a story about watchfulness. Careful reading, however, indicates that staying alert is not the real point. We are not told just to stay alert and be watchful, but rather to be prepared to wait. The wise will not let their love grow dim; they will be ready whenever the Lord comes, even if the delay is unexpectedly long. When it is time—and only God knows when that will be—we will recognize it. We will always be with the Lord.

A life of faith does not allow for complacency, but rather demands an attitude of expectation, attentiveness and preparation. Today is the day to act and put into practice what we preach. Tomorrow may be too late and we have no guarantee that tomorrow will come. Our chance is now. The task is not to wait and wonder when the Kingdom will come, but rather to prepare now so we are always ready.

Learn about the lives of saints, be moved by their examples, pope says

VATICAN CITY (CNS) -- Holiness is a gift everyone receives with baptism, and it is a journey to be made together with the help of the saints in heaven, Pope Francis said on the feast of All Saints.

The saints "are our elder brothers and sisters, on whom we can always count," he said before reciting the Angelus with people gathered in St. Peter's Square Nov. 1.

"They support us and, when we take a wrong turn along the way, with their silent presence they never fail to correct us; they are sincere friends, whom we can trust, because they desire our wellbeing," he said.

"Holiness is a gift from God which we have received with baptism," Pope Francis said. "If we let it grow, it can completely change our life."

"Therefore, saints are not unreachable or distant heroes, but people like us," he said, "whose starting point is the same gift we have received -- baptism."

In fact, he said, people today have certainly met what he likes to call the "saints next door," that is, people "who genuinely and with simplicity live a Christian life" as part of their "normal" everyday lives.

"Every gift, however, must be accepted," he said. It comes with "the responsibility of a response" and "the invitation to commit oneself so that it is not squandered."

Holiness, therefore, is also a journey "to be made together, helping each other, united with those excellent companions who are the saints," he said.

Pope Francis invited Catholics to get to know the lives of the saints, "to be moved by their examples" and "to turn to them in prayer."

"In their lives we find an example, in their prayers we receive help and friendship, and with them we are bound in a bond of brotherly love," he said.

After praying the Angelus, the pope asked for continued prayers "for the people who are suffering because of today's wars."

"Let us not forget tormented Ukraine, let us not forget Palestine, let us not forget Israel and let us not forget so many other regions" where fierce wars are raging, he said.
