Fr. Glenn's Pen – 4th Sunday in Ordinary Time Year A

In today's readings, we hear a job description for the Christian. I think it is worth unpacking. Zephaniah lived about 20 years before the Babylonian exile in 587 BC. Israel was apparently guilty of giving attention to false God's and it led him to prophesy that there would be a remnant who would remain faithful to God's commands. In our reading today, he enjoins the "humble to seek the Lord". This admonition also applies. Real humility is not about debasing oneself but rather simply recognizing that God is indeed God, and that oneself is not! This is at the heart of true humility. The true believer is to seek justice. Aquinas defines justice as getting what one ought. If one is a criminal, it is just to get them off the street and protect the common good. Seeking humility entails truly who has the capacity to allow their own opinions to be challenged and not to be upset when they are challenged! Zephaniah assures the people that there will be remnant who have these attributes. The word in Hebrew for "remnant" is anawim, which means little ones, or the poor ones. They are the ones who can live their lives in simplicity and with great integrity.

Our psalmist reaffirms the promises of God, for those who seek justice for others and helps the poor. God for His part gives sight to the blind, raises those up who were indeed humble. God protects the lowly and with thwarts the wicked and ultimately will reign forever!

Paul is helping the Corinthians to understand their vocation more deeply. It is not about being wise, powerful or noble in the eyes of others, but rather to be prepared that many will judge them to be weak and indeed even foolish. On the contrary, it will be the weak and those thought foolish to shame the wise even though they are despised in the world. If we happen to be the ones who are alive when Christ returns or manifests His presence with great miraculous signs, hopefully those who judged us to be the fools will repent and not let their blind arrogance cause their own perdition.

We hear St. Matthew's account of the sermon on the mount, which has come to be known as the beatitudes. In the popular series, The Chosen, it showed Jesus talking with Matthew about what he was going to say. Some found this scene challenging, and certainly Jesus would not have needed to confer with Matthew, but could it be that Jesus was modeling humility for Matthew. So many religious leaders think they have it all figured out. They are quick to judge the eternal destiny of those who do not think like they do. The "know-it-alls" are not "poor in spirit". The truly wise mourn over the evil that they see in their midst. Do the millions of children who have been lost because the propaganda of the abortion industry plague our hearts and cause us to mourn? The remnant will be meek, but in the true sense of the word, πρως, meaning "strength under control". This term related to the horse that would obey its master without hesitation, with all its strength, and enthusiasm, even in the face of great danger. Do we hunger and thirst for righteousness? Do we long to help others recognize the value of living in accord with God's commands and practicing virtue? Are we merciful or has the devil deceived us into holding grudges or having a vindictive attitude? Are we clean of heart? This means the sense of purity of heart. Do we strive to fill our senses with good, pure and holy things? Do we have custody of our mind and reject the temptations that may plague us? Are we intentional in choosing not to watch, read salacious, or raunchy things? Are we quick to be peacemakers and strive to help others see the other side. Do we try and discern the difference between essential issues, which we must fight to defend, or non-essential things, where we can live or let live? In all things, even to the jerks of the world, be charitable! And finally, can we rejoice when we are persecuted and slandered falsely, knowing that our reward is great in heaven

St Therese United for Life Spiritual Adoption Program

MONTH 5 – Developing Baby – "Mommy felt me kick today!"

Your spiritually adopted baby weighs over 1 pound now, and his mother can feel his movement.

Although he swam with ease in his watery world, he is now big and strong enough to kick hard against the outside wall and dent it - - the inside wall of the uterus has little feeling.

We are mid-way through the pregnancy now.

Your prayers have helped your baby's mother continue with her pregnancy and seek the help she needs.
