*Aditi Gaddam
Next Generation Inclusive
Leader Award*

Aditi Gaddam is a high school student, student entrepreneur, and Founder and Executive Director of Ventura Innovation, a global student-led initiative focused on expanding access to entrepreneurship, mentorship, and innovation opportunities for young people. Through Ventura, she has built programs and systems that connect students with mentors, industry professionals, educational resources, and opportunities to turn their ideas into action, connecting innovation beyond borders.

Aditi is passionate about designing systems that make it easier for people and communities to access the resources, connections, and support they need to grow and create meaningful change. She believes that students should have the ability to pursue their ideas regardless of their background, location, or existing connections. Through her leadership and community work, she focuses on building initiatives that bring people together, create pathways for others to get involved, and give young people the support and confidence to become leaders themselves.
