

Associate Artist - Sophie Willoughby

Sophie Willoughby is a multi-disciplinary artist/maker with a particular love of screenprinting for its versatile nature. Photography is her usual starting point, capturing subjects of intrigue from the outside world; an eclectic mix of subjects including architecture and the urban environment, people and carnival. She often works with a collage aesthetic, juxtaposing different elements - images, shapes and mark-making - to produce work that has beauty and intrigue with a playful element. Inspired by many different designer/makers she has a particular love of the Bauhaus and Russian Constructivist artists and designers Sophie has been making since childhood. She gained a First Class BA (Hons) Fine Art degree and went on to study MA Multi-Disciplinary Printmaking. Following this she was awarded a year's scholarship at Spike Print Studio, Bristol and has exhibited her work in the UK and abroad. As well as her art practice Sophie is an early years practitioner and believes the arts can be used in many ways from creating beautiful objects, education to health and well being.
