

Stewart Cink has won consecutive majors relying on a G440 MAX driver; he's #1 in driving distance at 299.4 yards.

DOUBLE MAJOR

For his opponents on the PGA Tour Champions, it's become an all-too-familiar sight: Stewart Cink all smiles, holding the trophy. On Sunday he was raising the Regions Tradition hardware, his second major championship in a row and his fourth victory in seven events this season.

The winning clip is impressive enough, but he's been thoroughly dominant at every stop, winning by three strokes, four, six, and three again on Sunday.

Cink leads the Charles Schwab Cup points race with more than $1.9 million, more than double the money of the player in second.

He'll go for his ninth career Champions victory this week when he defends his title at the In斯perity Invitational.

In the bag was his same PING technology, including a G440 MAX driver and G440 MAX 3W.

YOO LEADS 1-2 PING FINISH ON KOREA LPGA

Hyun Jo Yoo earned her third career victory Sunday at the DB Women's Championship on the Korea LPGA Tour, a one-shot win over PING Pro Da Yeon Lee.

She relied on PING technology including a G440 LST driver, G430 MAX 3W, G440 hybrid, iCrossover, i230 and Blueprint S irons, and a PING 2021 Kushin 4 putter.

It is Yoo's third consecutive season with at least one victory, having won the KB Financial Star Championship, a major, in both 2024 (when she was named Rookie of the Year), and in 2025.

It could have walked in Hovi's line, so Viktor Hovland's caddie Shay Knight went above and beyond by escorting a snapping turtle off the green during a practice round at the Cadillac Championship at Trump National Doral in Miami, Fla. The turtle was none-too-pleased. It will be a busy two weeks for Hovland and Knight as they prepare for this week's Signature Event, the Truist Championship, and the PGA Championship the following week.

SET FOR SIGNATURE EVENT

Coming off a T7 at the Cadillac Championship and a runner-up at the Zurich Classic, Alex Smalley is among a dozen staffers headed to this week's Signature Event, the Truist Championship.
