Faith Formation News

October 26, 2025

The month of November is dedicated to the

Holy Souls in Purgatory

Souls in Purgatory aren't able to pray for themselves, so it is our responsibility as Catholics to pray for them in November and throughout the year.

Corporal Work of Mercy - Burying the Dead
Spiritual Work of Mercy - Praying for the Dead

Try incorporating some of these traditions in your home this month:

Pray the St. Gertrude Prayer for the Release of Souls in Purgatory
Visit a Cemetery and Pray for 10 Strangers by Name
Pray for the Most Forgotten Soul in Purgatory before Each Meal
Visit a Cemetery and Clean Up Headstones and Grave Sites
Use the Ora Pro Nobis Calendar to Pray for a Loved One Every Day

Message of the Week

Reflection for the 30th Sunday In Ordinary Time, Cycle C

My dear friends this week's Gospel (Lk 18:9-14) tells us what can happen when we compare our actions to the actions of others, instead of comparing them to the actions of Our Lord.

In the Gospel we hear the parable of two men who go into the temple to pray. One is a Pharisee, the other a tax collector. Now the Pharisee, who is very haughty and full of himself, takes up his prayer position with an air of superiority. He looks up and says to himself, "O God, I thank you that I am not like the rest of humanity: greedy, dishonest, adulterous. Or even like this tax collector." Even though he is looking up, in reality he is praying to himself; almost as if he is looking into a mirror. He lists all the good works he has done, even glancing toward the tax collector who is in the temple to pray. What arrogance the Pharisee displays!

Then we see the tax collector who stands far away. He doesn't even find himself worthy to raise his eyes, but instead he beats his breast and prays, "O God, be merciful to me a Sinner." What humility the tax collector displays.

Here we have this collision of two polar-opposite behaviors: arrogance vs. humility. We can go through life comparing ourselves to the ways of the world and justify our actions in relationship to others. We can tell ourselves "I'm a good person. I don't steal, I don't cheat on my spouse, I don't physically hurt anyone." And we can tell ourselves "I'm not like that other person who's addicted to drugs, or alcohol, or pornography." But that's not how we should be looking at our actions. We're not to be looking at ourselves in comparison to the actions of other people. Instead we are to be comparing our actions to those of Jesus. Because that is the true measure against which we should be gauging our own actions. If we compare ourselves to other people we will become like that arrogant Pharisee.

Pope Francis reminds us that, "the parable teaches us that a man is just or sinful not because of his social class, but because of his way of relating to God and how he relates to his brothers and sisters. Gestures of repentance and the few and brief words of the tax collector bear witness to his awareness of his own miserable condition. His prayer is essential. He acts out of humility, certain only that he is a sinner in need of mercy." The words of the Gospel are encouraging us to humbly look within ourselves and to recognize when we are falling short of acting like the person that God created us to be.

So the challenge for each of us is to look inward with a humble heart and ask ourselves these questions:

- Are my thoughts and actions mirroring those of Jesus?
- In what ways have I failed to be like Jesus?
- What changes do I need to make in my life to do better, and to walk like Jesus instead of walking in the ways of the world?

And then with a humble heart you can stand at a distance and humbly pray, "O God be merciful to me a Sinner," for as Jesus tells us "whoever exalts himself will be humbled, and the one who humbles himself will be exalted."

Blessings,

Deacon Anthony Cioe
