Message of the Week

Reflection For The 26th Sunday In Ordinary Time Cycle C

Jesus is an amazing communicator. He has the ability to gently draw His listeners into a story, to introduce characters who are the complete opposite of each other, and then He puts them on a collision course with each other. He makes us feel the tension between the characters; and that tension can illuminate our own imperfections. Today's Gospel is a perfect example.

In the Gospel Jesus tells a story about a rich man who was dressed in purple garments and fine linen. Why is it important that he wore purple garments? Because purple dye was rare and expensive, if you were wearing purple clothing, you had wealth. This wealthy man had everything he could want, and all the food he could eat.

Now we have this opposite extreme. This poor person Lazarus is covered with sores, he has nothing and would have been happy eating the scraps from the rich man's table. And here's where these two characters collide, and where their worlds intersect. Jesus tells us that Lazarus, the poor man, is laying at the rich man's door. Every day the rich man had to step over him, or around him, just to enter or exit his home, and he does nothing to help him.

The story continues with both men dying. Lazarus was carried up by angels. The rich man went to be tormented. In death, the situations of the 2 men are reversed.

Why is the rich man punished? Not because he's rich, but because he ignored the needs of the poor. The rich man knew Lazarus in life, and knew his need, but ignored his moral responsibility. He literally stopped seeing this poor sick man at his door. It's as if, in his eyes, this man didn't even exist.

We're given a similar message in our 1st reading from the prophet Amos. We hear about how the rich people sleep in beds inlaid with ivory. They eat only the choicest foods. But they are hypocrites because while they are saying that they love God, they are neglecting the needs of their neighbor. The two positions don't mesh. You cannot really love God without also loving your neighbor.

In both of those stories, it's important to understand that the rich people are not being criticized because they are rich, in fact they don't appear to be hostile or hateful to the poor. The people He's speaking about are those who are complacent, those who are overly content with themselves and their circumstances. They are smug, self-satisfied, very pleased with themselves. The man in today's gospel, he did Lazarus no harm, but he did him no good either!

And what does Jesus say, he says "woe to the complacent." Wow, those are strong words! If we really love God, then we must stop and help those in need whether it's physical, spiritual, financial, or emotional. There is an inner tension and an inner wisdom that tells you what is right. But there is an opposing message of modern secular society that is constant and strong and challenging and intoxicating... and it pulls us in the other direction. It causes us to take our eyes off of those in need, and it takes away our guilt for not helping them. God is just reminding us to open our eyes to the needs of others and to help in some way. Even if it's simply listening.

The gospel challenges us to see the needs of the poor and the hurting, those on the margins of society with a fresh set of eyes. A set of eyes that will allow us to see as Jesus saw, so that every single day we can see the needs of others and have it impact us as if we are seeing them for the first time. And not just to see, but to respond.

This week pray to our Lord for a fresh set of eyes; eyes that are not complacent, but rather eyes that can humbly see the plight of those in need. Pray for the grace to listen patiently and lovingly, and to just be present to someone who is in need. And pray for the strength to do whatever you can to help, no matter how small your gesture may seem.

God bless you.
