Saints Peter and Paul Parish

Have you ever noticed a child playing near a busy road? If you see that child moving toward danger, what would you do? Would you say, “It is none of my business”? Certainly not! Love would compel you to call out, to warn, and perhaps even to run and protect the child.

Today’s readings remind us that, in the family of God, we are responsible for one another.

In the first reading, God tells the prophet Ezekiel: “I have appointed you watchman for the house of Israel.” A watchman had the duty of staying awake and warning the people when danger approached. God tells Ezekiel that if he sees danger and remains silent, he shares responsibility for the consequences.

This is a powerful message for us. Sometimes we see a family member, a friend, or someone close to us making choices that can harm them. We may remain silent because we do not want to offend them. But there is a difference between judging someone and lovingly helping someone.

That is exactly what Jesus teaches in today’s Gospel. He says, “If your brother sins against you, go and tell him his fault between you and him alone.” Notice how gently Jesus asks us to act. Not by gossiping. Not by humiliating the person. Not by spreading the story to everyone else. First, go privately and speak with love.

St. Paul gives us the key to doing this correctly: “Love is the fulfillment of the law.” If love is absent, correction can become anger. But when love is present, even a difficult conversation can become an act of mercy.

Sometimes the most loving words we can say are: “I am worried about you.” “I think you are hurting yourself.” “Please forgive me.” Or, “Let us pray together.”

The world often tells us, “Mind your own business.” But the Gospel tells us, “Love one another enough to care.” We belong to one another. We are brothers and sisters in Christ.

And Jesus gives us a beautiful promise: “Where two or three are gathered together in my name, there am I in the midst of them.”

So, when we come together in love, when we pray for one another, forgive one another, and gently help one another return to the right path, Jesus himself is in our midst.

Today, let us ask the Lord for the courage to speak the truth—but always with love; to correct—but always with humility; and to remember that the greatest commandment is not simply to be right, but to love.
