Acknowledgement of the Land

Prepared by Rev. Emma Seamone

As we prepare for worship, take a moment to think of where you are. Acknowledge to yourself where and with whom you live. Think about the relationship you do or do not have with the land, the people, the treaties. Think about what your responsibilities are to the land, the people, and the treaties. How will you honour that, today, and every day?

A young preacher had been called to a small rural church and appeared for his first sermon on Sunday morning. To his dismay he found that one of the parishioners had brought his dog to the service. He spoke politely to the dog's owner and asked if he would kindly remove the animal. The man obligingly took the dog out, then returned to his seat.

After the service, the church deacons rebuked the new preacher for insulting one of their staunch members. They pointed out that the dog made no trouble; he had been accompanying his master to church for years.

That afternoon the young preacher called at the home of the dog's owner and apologized.

"Don't worry a bit about it, Reverend," the man replied, "It all worked out. I wouldn't have had my dog hear that sermon for anything in the world."

We are one in this space, in this building, in this community, in this world. We are one through the generations, through song and word, through worship. We are one just as we are. All are welcome here.
