A note from the pastor

Blessed Elias Howayek, Maronite Patriarch (1843 -1931)

Elias Howayek, 'Father of Greater Lebanon'

The patriarch of Antioch of the Maronites, Venerable Elias Howayek, will be declared blessed as the pontiff has approved a miracle attributed to his intercession.

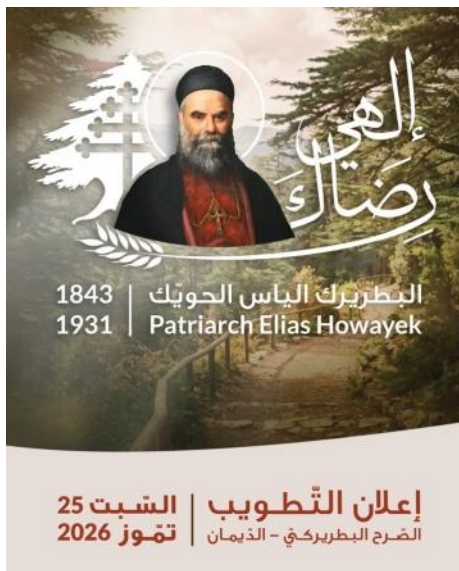

Born on Dec. 4, 1843, in Helta Batroun, he founded the Congregation of the Maronite Sisters of the Holy Family in Ebrine, northern Lebanon, the first female religious institute of apostolic life in the Maronite Church.

He was elected patriarch of Antioch and of All the East for the Maronites in 1899, a position he held for more than 30 years "with great dedication and pastoral sensitivity, constantly attending to the formation of the clergy and the catechesis of the faithful," the Dicastery for the Causes of Saints notes.

The future blessed aided the Lebanese people during the First World War, placing convents and monasteries at their disposal, a gesture for which he was sentenced to deportation, though he was ultimately able to remain in Lebanon thanks to the intervention of Pope Benedict XV.

At the Congress of Versailles, he advocated for the independence of his homeland, which had been part of the Ottoman Empire during the war, achieving the proclamation of the new State of Greater Lebanon on Sept. 1, 1920; for this reason, he is known as the "Father of Greater Lebanon."

He used his influence to humbly assist those in need, regardless of their social standing.
