SULADS CANADA

JANUARY, 2026

FROM THE SOIL TO THE COMMUNITY

There is something deeply spiritual about a garden. A seed planted in faith grows quietly and, with care, bears fruit for others. This is grace — and the foundation of sustainability. By cultivating the land responsibly, we not only feed today but invest in tomorrow, nurturing stewardship, resilience, and community responsibility together.

GRACE THAT GROWS

When we cultivate the land, we witness a beautiful cycle:

- The soil gives life.
- The plant grows.
- The harvest multiplies.
- The community is nourished.

In the same way, when we receive Christ's grace, it produces kindness, generosity, and compassion. We begin to look beyond ourselves. We see neighbours in need. We feel a burden to serve.

FROM HARVEST TO HOPE

Sharing the yields from the garden is more than distributing vegetables. It is:

- Extending dignity to families
- Teaching sustainability and responsibility
- Building relationships within the community
- Demonstrating Christ's practical love

Each basket of produce becomes a testimony.

Each shared meal becomes a ministry.

When we give from what the soil has produced, we reflect the heart of God — who first gave to us.

As we continue planting, cultivating, and harvesting, may we remember. The soil represents God's provision. The harvest represents His blessing. The sharing represents our mission.

From the soil to the community, the work of our hands becomes a channel of grace.

Let us keep planting seeds — not only in the ground, but in hearts.
