Canada is full of surprises, and Saskatchewan is one of its most underrated treasures. Nestled between Manitoba and Alberta, this prairie province takes its name from the Plains Cree word “kisiskatchewan,” meaning “the river that flows swiftly.” It's also known as the Land of Living Skies, a nickname you'll only truly understand once you've witnessed its endless horizons and ever-changing skies for yourself.

While Saskatchewan is famous for its vast, flat farmland stretching for miles, it also offers rolling hills, rugged badlands, and gentle hiking trails that surprise and inspire. Home to over a million people, the province is rich in Métis heritage, having played a pivotal role in the Northwest Rebellion led by Louis Riel, a key chapter in Canada's story.

Come explore on foot, a side of Canada that many overlook. From sweeping prairie views to deep cultural roots, Saskatchewan's hidden gems are waiting to be discovered.

Why This Tour is Great

Discover an Underrated Side of Canada

Forget the notion that Saskatchewan is just flat prairie or a province to pass over. With 35 provincial parks, 2 national parks, 80 regional parks, and more than 100,000 lakes and rivers, Saskatchewan offers an incredible diversity of landscapes. This tour takes you through the South and Central regions, where you'll explore rolling grassy hills, dramatic badlands, river valleys, and wide-open skies that stretch to the horizon.

Where Urban Life Meets Nature

Saskatoon, Regina, and Moose Jaw, three of Saskatchewan's largest cities, each offer vibrant arts, culture, and dining scenes, along with a strong sense of heritage. But what truly sets them apart is their seamless connection to nature, with expansive urban parks and riverside trails just steps from city life.

Iconic Prairie Wildlife

Southern and Central Saskatchewan are home to some of Canada's most distinctive wildlife, including bison, pronghorns, elk, moose, black-tailed prairie dogs, and the elusive burrowing owl. You'll even visit North America's oldest bird sanctuary, where over 200 species pass through each year.
