Father's Day: A Vocation of Love and Presence

Art Scheuber
Director of Administrative Services

As we celebrate Father's Day, we give thanks to God for the gift of fathers and for the many men who reflect the loving heart of our Heavenly Father.

Fatherhood is much more than a biological relationship. At its core, being a father means accepting the responsibility to love, protect, guide, teach, and sacrifice for the good of another. A father helps his children discover who they are and who God calls them to be. Through words and actions, he teaches integrity, faith, perseverance, and compassion. While no father fulfills this calling perfectly, the vocation of fatherhood invites men to imitate the faithful love that God has for each of His children.

In Scripture, we see examples of fatherly care and leadership, perhaps most beautifully in St. Joseph. Though he was not the biological father of Jesus, Joseph embraced the role entrusted to him by God. He protected, provided for, and guided the Holy Family with humility and courage. His example reminds us that fatherhood is defined not merely by biology but by faithful love and self-giving service.

This truth is especially important as we recognize the many men who may not be fathers themselves, but who have profoundly influenced the lives of others.

Grandfathers, uncles, godfathers, teachers, coaches, mentors, priests, deacons, and religious brothers often serve as father figures. They offer encouragement, wisdom, discipline, and support. They stand beside young people during important moments and quietly help shape the people they become.

Our parish is blessed by men who embody this spiritual fatherhood. Whether they are leading ministries, teaching the faith, volunteering with youth, caring for family members, or simply offering a listening ear, they demonstrate the strength and generosity that fatherhood requires. Their witness reminds us that every man is called to use his gifts to nurture and support those entrusted to his care.

On this Father's Day, we honor all fathers, grandfathers, and father figures. We pray for those actively raising children, for those whose children are grown, for those who have lost children, and for those who long to be fathers. We also remember with gratitude the men who have gone before us and whose love and example continue to shape our lives.

May St. Joseph intercede for all men, helping them to lead with courage, serve with humility, and love with the generous heart of Christ.

Happy Father's Day.
