Dear Patients, Friends, and Family,

After 45 wonderful years of practicing podiatry, I am writing to announce my retirement at the end of this year. Deciding to step back from the career I love comes with mixed emotions, but as I reflect on the decades spent serving this community, my predominant feeling is immense gratitude.

Thank you for entrusting me with your foot and ankle care for so long. One of the greatest privileges of my career has been the confidence you placed in me by referring your families, friends, and neighbors. I have literally watched generations of families grow up before my eyes, treating children who later brought in their own children. Over the years, the lines between professional relationships and true friendships have beautifully blurred. I have been profoundly blessed to care for so many of you, share in your lives, and help keep you on your feet.

As I turn the page to this next chapter, I look forward to embracing new adventures and simple pleasures. I plan to spend cherished time with my new granddaughter and family, travel, work on my golf game, tackle projects around the house and yard, and devote time to helping others in need.

Please rest assured that your care remains in excellent hands. The doctors remaining at the practice are exceptional clinicians whom I trust implicitly, and I have every confidence they will continue to provide you with the highest standard of compassionate care.

It has been an absolute honor to serve as your doctor. Thank you for 45 unforgettable years of trust, laughter, and community. I wish you and your loved ones good health and happiness always. If you need anything done by the end of the year, please call the office so I can take care of you.

Warmest regards,

Dr. Brian Kashan
