MEET THE OWNER

In the village of Diara, in the Thakur Gangti block of Godda District, Jharkhand, well no. 936 has been installed to meet a critical need for clean drinking water. Most villagers are poor, work in agriculture, and have limited access to education or opportunities for a better future. Diara is about 25 kilometers from the nearest town, and families depend on daily wage labor, farming, and small local trades. For years, nearly 30 families had no reliable source of clean water. They often walked more than 2 kilometers to fetch water from a pond, while the village's old pitch well was broken and sometimes contaminated by dead animals.

This shortage severely affected daily life—villagers struggled to bathe, wash clothes, and maintain hygiene, leading to frequent illness. Children were often late to school because of long water-collection trips.

Local farmer Shriram Murmu and other villagers sought help and contacted Shambhu Kumar Sah. After surveying the area, the team moved forward with installing a new well. The well has brought immediate relief. Families now have clean water close to home, improving hygiene, health, and overall quality of life. The community is grateful to the Quenched Team, and this positive change has opened doors for hope, unity, and opportunities to share the gospel.
