MEET THE RECIPIENTS

The well installed by Quenched in Jogidaha, a village in Udayapur District, has been a life-changing blessing for the community, especially for the Tharu families living there. Many villagers live in poverty and have struggled for years to access clean drinking water.

Jogidaha is densely populated, and many families do not have private wells. Instead, they relied on distant wells or wells already being used by others. This often meant long walks to fetch water, and even then the wells were sometimes overcrowded or not working. These daily shortages made it difficult to bathe, wash clothes, and keep homes clean, and the constant demand often led to tension within the community.

Since the new well was installed, life has improved greatly. Now, more than 60 people benefit from this well, including local families and visitors. The well has brought relief, improved hygiene, and helped restore peace.

Another meaningful impact is that it has opened doors for sharing the gospel. Many people have listened with open hearts, and several have shown interest in learning more.

This well has become a source of both physical and spiritual refreshment in Jogidaha.

The community is deeply grateful to Quenched and hopeful this partnership will continue to bring positive change in the future.

WELL WAS DRILLED AND DEDICATED!

WELL REPORT

MEET THE CARETAKER

My name is Ram Deepak Chaudhary, and I live in this village. I want to share how Quenched has brought new hope to our lives.

Before the well was installed, my family had no choice but to rely on a private well located about 70 meters away. We were forced to use that well because there was no other option. However, the owner did not like us coming to collect water. They had built a fence with a gate, and every time we needed water, we had to call them and ask for permission. Many times, no one was home, and we were left with no choice but to search for another water source or buy water at a high price. It felt like we were trapped—unable to get water when we needed it most. Our financial situation was very poor, and we could not afford to install a well ourselves. We felt helpless, as if we had no control over such a basic need.

But then Quenched came to help. They saw our struggle and decided to install a well for our community. Now we can collect water anytime we need it, without waiting for permission or worrying about the cost. We feel free, and the burden we carried for so long has been lifted.

Quenched has truly made a difference in our lives, and we are deeply grateful for their support.

THANK YOU FOR YOUR PARTNERSHIP!
