

Bellatrix vs. Valkerie

Finding the Right Fit

Trait	Bellatrix	Valkerie
Age	5 years	5 years
Overall Temperament	Extremely sweet, outgoing, people-oriented	Calm, steady, thoughtful
Affection Style	Velcro dog – wants to be close, touched, involved	Loyal but more independent – enjoys companionship without constant contact
Energy Level	Low to moderate	Low
Personality Type	Social butterfly	Old soul
Patience with Other Dogs	Does best with calm, respectful dogs	Limited patience for young, fast, or overly playful dogs
Best Dog Match	Gentle, non-dominant companions	Calm adult dog or only dog
Small / Fast Dogs	May tolerate with proper introductions	Likely not a good fit
Home Environment	Calm, affectionate household	Quiet, structured, predictable household
Lifestyle Fit	Home-centered, enjoys being with her people	Home-centered, enjoys peaceful independence
House Training	Fully house trained	Fully house trained
Travel & Outings	Can travel but prefers familiar environments	Can travel but prefers routine and stability
Ideal Owner	Someone who wants a devoted shadow and constant companionship	Someone who values a composed, low-key companion
Spay Status	Will be spayed prior to placement	Will be spayed prior to placement

In Simple Terms

- Choose Bellatrix if you want a sweet, affectionate dog who wants to be part of everything you do and thrives on close connection.
- Choose Valkerie if you want a calm, steady companion who enjoys being near you but does not need to be attached at the hip.

Both girls are:

- True homebodies
- Fully house trained
- Emotionally stable adults
- Best suited for calm, predictable homes

Neither is a “project” dog—and neither will thrive in a high-traffic, constantly changing social lifestyle.