

Just south of Belleville on a small, family farm, Rich and Michele Joseph grow beer. The pair first met in a cornfield during a summer agronomy internship. Michele was studying soils and crops at UW-Platteville and Rich was preparing for a career in Agriculture and Life Sciences at UW-Madison.

Years later, after moving their initial two-acre crop of hops from Michele's father's land to their newly purchased farm, they would expand their hop crop to over seven acres, add pumpkins and vegetable crops along with an 1,800 sq. ft. greenhouse for growing vegetables to use in the kitchen and sell at the farms roadside stand and Paoli Farmers Market. Co-founders of the Wisconsin Hop Exchange, their hops are used by several award-winning Wisconsin breweries.

In 2014, Rich and Michele launched Hop Garden Brewing with a focus on small batch, signature, and seasonal craft beer production. The following year they opened a humble tap room in Paoli, WI that quickly became a popular destination for live music, good food at the Hop Garden Cook House, and of course, delicious, rotating craft beer. In 2023, they opened a second Hop Garden Tap Room, Brewery and Smokehouse Restaurant in Evansville. Today, Hop Garden beer is available at grocery and liquor stores, and at several restaurants and bars throughout Southern Wisconsin.

Rich and Michele, together with their "Brew Crew", welcome you to relax and enjoy a pint of cold, locally grown, farm-to-glass beer. Cheers!
