PARENTS CORNER

Activate the Mind, Activate the Body
Learning how to receive and apply corrections is an important part of becoming a confident, independent athlete. This month, we are teaching our gymnasts the AMAB 4-Step Process:

- 1. Listen: Hear the correction and simplify it
- 2. Activate the Mind: Repeat the correction to yourself with focus and intention.
- 3. Activate the Body: Physically practice the correction before your next turn.
- 4. Say It During the Skill: Use your correction as you perform, allowing your mind to guide your body.

COACHES CORNER

Focus: Routine Halves- By November 2nd, athletes should be able to confidently and safely connect their routine halves on the competition surface. The goal is for athletes to show coaches that they are ready to progress toward full routines using the skills they are currently training. Completing routine halves on the competition surface will help athletes develop confidence, endurance, consistency, and the ability to safely perform their routines in a competition setting.

On October 6th, USAG celebrates National Coaches Day! We are grateful for the opportunity to be part of each gymnast's journey and to watch them grow both inside and outside the gym. Thank you to all of our Olympia coaches for the time, heart, and dedication you give our athletes every day!

MENTALITY: THE POWER OF POSITIVE SELF TALK

The way athletes talk to themselves can have a powerful impact on their gymnastics. Positive self-talk helps build confidence, improve attitude, and encourage motivation, especially when challenges arise. Teaching athletes to replace negative thoughts with positive, encouraging statements can help them stay focused, work through difficult skills, and approach practice with a growth mindset. NUTRITION: FUELING STRONG ATHLETES

This month, we're focusing on fruit! Fruits are a great source of carbohydrates, vitamins, minerals, antioxidants, and natural energy to help athletes perform and recover. Athletes should aim to enjoy at least two servings of fruit each day, ideally incorporating fruit before and after practice on training days. Try options like bananas, berries, apples, oranges, grapes, or melon for an easy and delicious way to fuel strong athletes!

STRENGTH & FLEXIBILITY

October Focus: Handstand Push-Ups & Pike Opens

This month, we're focusing on handstand push-ups and pike opens to build upper-body strength, body control, flexibility, and the shoulder and core strength needed for strong gymnastics skills. Consistent practice helps athletes develop the strength and mobility necessary to progress safely and confidently.

Take it home!

Athletes can use their alternative assignments at home to stay consistent and continue building strength and flexibility between practices. If an athlete is still developing these skills, they are encouraged to continue working at home to support their progress.
