On Feb. 8, at 1:00 pm, The Marshall Project president Carroll Bogert will join us to discuss creating and sustaining the urgency for criminal justice reform. The Marshall Project is a Pulitzer-winning investigative non-profit that pursues criminal justice reform through fair, transparent, and effective journalism. As President-elect Biden takes office amid great turmoil, his stated priorities include reforms of policing, the death penalty, bail, and elimination of mandatory minimum sentences. Ms. Bogert will share her views on the most pressing of these and other issues.

Before joining The Marshall Project, Ms. Bogert served for 18 years as deputy director of Human Rights Watch, running global media operations, and before that as a foreign correspondent for "Newsweek" magazine, based in Moscow, Hong Kong, and Beijing, covering the fall of the Soviet Union, the Tiananmen Square protests, and the economic rise of Asia.
