

Building a Career with Drive and Purpose

How Personalized Support Fueled Michael's Automotive Ambitions

When Michael first came to Covenant House Florida, life was challenging in a new way. It was his very first time navigating the world on his own with no support system in place. He came to our Fort Lauderdale Safe Haven searching for structure, guidance, community, and the stability he needed to safely take his next steps into adulthood.

Michael immediately began working toward two important goals: finding safe housing and finding job opportunities that once felt out of reach. With his determination and the individualized support from our Education and Workforce Development program, he quickly began making progress.

Within just a few months, he successfully secured employment and is currently the Lead Tech Mechanic at Pep Boys. Building a career in the automotive industry has given him a strong sense of pride and stability while allowing him to do work he is truly passionate about.

Michael is already focused on what comes next. He is currently studying for his ASE (Automotive Service Excellence) certifications and plans to pursue business management courses. His long-term goal is to gain the skills necessary to eventually open and operate his own mechanic shop.

Through his work ethic and an unwavering refusal to give up on his dreams, Michael has completely rewritten his future. He has transformed from a young man who once felt lost into a focused and thriving professional. By pairing his unstoppable drive with the structured and individualized resources at the Cov, Michael is successfully steering his life toward a future of true independence and enduring success. Michael's Journey is a beautiful reminder of what can happen when determination is met with the support and opportunity to move forward.

Michael (left) with Covenant House Florida CEO, Renee' Trincanella (right)