LESS JAM, MORE HAVOC, AN EXHIBITION BY KELLY RATCHFORD AND JAKI COFFEY

Thursday, July 15, 2021 to Sunday, August 15, 2021

The Olivier Cornet Gallery is delighted to present this two-person exhibition featuring new work by Jaki Coffey and Olivier Cornet Gallery artist Kelly Ratchford.

We've all been climbing the walls during these bizarre times. Sometimes walls can be useful collateral.

After a very successful run of 'Jam Havoc' in our 3D Virtual Space in March/April, Jaki Coffey and Kelly Ratchford are exhibiting new work for 'Less Jam, More Havoc' at the Olivier Cornet Gallery.

Jaki Coffey creates playful pieces that celebrate personal narratives with careful consideration to the materials used. The work in this exhibition is a record of the artist's daughter attacking glorious blocks of butter while quietly leaving her marks as ephemeral graffiti around the home.

Mark making is also a significant aspect to Kelly Ratchford's practice. Simple lines and sporadic blocks of colour offer a simplicity found in work made by children. The simplicity is working in conjunction with a complex layer of mistakes, spills and messes.

Both artists share a desire to incorporate humour and playfulness in their work. They take the work seriously but delight in the spontaneous, in the play.

During their earlier online exhibition, the artists enjoyed a question-and-answer talk with children and young people from different parts of the world. The artists have invited some of the participants to make and share something inspired by the earlier show. These masterpieces will also be exhibited in 'Less Jam, More Havoc'.

Note about The Gary Numan's (3D vehicles) series: sizes are variable, they range from 7x6x1cm for the smallest (75 euro each) to 12x10x2cm for the largest ones (85 euro each). Contact us for details.
