

Paris Jackson Went Partying in New York After the Met Gala, and More of the Best Party Pictures of the Week

This week was arguably all about fashion's biggest party of the year—the Met Gala, of course—but that's not to say there weren't additional sartorially-charged bashes to fill the event calendar. Leading up to Monday, Joan Smalls and Hailey Baldwin helped hotspot The Blond celebrate it's one year anniversary, while Dustin Yellin lured some famous friends, including Alexa Chung and Maggie Gyllenhaal, over to Red Hook, Brooklyn, for the annual Pioneer Works Village fete. On Tuesday, Burberry celebrated its new handbag, the DK88, with an in-store party that brought out the likes of Serena Williams, Ellie Goulding, and Ruby Rose. Of course, despite being on opposite coasts, Los Angeles also had its own fashionable fete, with Roger Vivier's cocktail, hosted by creative director Bruno Frisoni, to honor the brand's iconic Strauss buckle. Here, all of the party pictures that you may have missed.

