The Blessing of a Grateful Heart

A young boy once asked his grandmother, “Why do we thank God before every meal, even when we have the same food almost every day?” His grandmother smiled and replied, “Because, my dear, gratitude is not about how much we have. It is about remembering who gives us everything.” She continued, “We thank God for the food on our table, but also for the hands that prepared it. We thank Him for our family, for those who love us, and even for the little things we sometimes take for granted. Most importantly, we thank Him for His love, which never runs out.” The boy thought for a moment and asked, “But what if we don't have everything we want?” His grandmother gently took his hand. “Then we remember that God has given us what we need most: His presence, His mercy, and the promise that we are never alone. ” That Thanksgiving, as the family gathered around the table, the boy offered the prayer. Instead of simply thanking God for the turkey and all the delicious food, he prayed:

“Dear Jesus, thank You for our family, for our home, for the people who care for us, and for all the blessings we sometimes forget to notice. Please bless those who are hungry, lonely, sick, or struggling this Thanksgiving. Help us share what we have and remember that everything is a gift from You. Amen.”
