News article

This year we are working on getting the irrigation system up and running out on the school farm. Our goal was to get the irrigation system running last year so that we could start planting grass and try to get a grazing pasture going. We had the pipe already set underground, but we had to move the pipe to a different location. We started to dig up the pipe and started digging a new trench to run the pipe to a different location. After we got the pipe set where it needed to be we got all of our connections hooked up to the pump. We put the hose in the ditch and got water running through the pump, but the pump wouldn't suck water up and through the pipe. That is where we stopped last year because the ditch had no water left in it at that point. We are going to continue when it warms up this spring. We have thought about shortening things up to see if that will work. If that doesn't work we will tie into the school's big pump and use that to water our farm.

Net Safety night

The Net Safety night event had a good turnout with lots of parents and kids attending. The overall content was good although it was somewhat surface level in what it showed. However, it gave the parents information on what to look out for, which is important. In the student council meeting after they discussed it and thought it went mostly well.

song review

Un-thinkable (Im Ready) feat. Drake

Unthinkable is originally a 2010 R&B single by Alicia Keys. It was written by Drake and produced by "No I.D." The song has background vocals from Drake. The song blends vulnerable songwriting with a minimalist, moody production. It reflects Drake's Emotion.

The lyrics are based on commitment, hesitation, and taking the next step in a relationship. Even if it feels scary, risky, or even "Unthinkable". The song's main center point is based on a couple who clearly love each other, but there is something holding them back. For example, if the timing is right, expectations, etc. The singers are mainly talking about commitment despite fear, trusting your partner, ignoring others opinions, and choosing love over hesitation.

That is what makes the song vulnerable. It also can give you confidence to not be scared to take things to another level, if you're feeling the benefit of the doubt
