My personal goals once I graduate college is to become a physical therapist and focus on helping people recover from health problems and injuries. I want to build a successful and well-respected career where I can make a positive impact on the lives of others. I believe my strong work ethic and determination will help me succeed throughout the schooling required for this profession. My exceptional social skills will allow me to communicate effectively with patients and create a positive and encouraging environment in the workplace.

My education and talents could benefit the business community of Franklin County. This area has many labor-intensive jobs, which increase the risk of injuries. Physical therapists play an important role in helping injured workers recover and return to their jobs in a timely manner. By supporting rehab and injury prevention, therapists help keep the local workforce healthy and productive.

Franklin County also has many schools with successful athletic programs. As sports continue to become faster and more competitive, the risk of injuries has increased. As a Physical Therapy, I would be able to help athletes recover and return to play. My profession would help support local schools and community sports programs by helping prevent and take care of injuries.

Lastly I feel that my focus in the classroom and dedication to a career I enjoy will lead to a rewarding future. I am confident that my personality, communication skills, and want to learn will allow me to succeed and make a difference in the healthcare field.

To Whom it may Concern,

It is truly a pleasure to write this letter of recommendation for Owen Cook. As the secretary in the guidance office, I have the opportunity to interact with students in many different settings, and Owen is someone who consistently stands out — not just for his accomplishments, but for the kind of person he is.

Owen is one of the most genuinely polite and respectful students I have worked with. He treats everyone — staff, teachers, peers, and community members — with kindness and consideration. He goes out of his way to help others, whether that means assisting a fellow student, offering to carry something for a staff member, or volunteering his time in the community. His thoughtfulness is not for recognition; it is simply who he is.

Academically, Owen has maintained Honor Roll status throughout all four years of high school. As a student from a single-parent household, he understands responsibility and hard work in a very real way. He balances his academic workload with athletics, work, and community involvement, and he does so with determination and maturity. His ability to manage so many commitments speaks volumes about his discipline and character.

Owen is also a three-season varsity athlete in soccer, basketball, and baseball. He is a leader both on the field and in the classroom. He leads by example, encourages his teammates, and is never afraid to stand up for what is right. His integrity and sportsmanship reflect the type of leader he has become. This past fall, during his senior soccer season, Owen began the season with an injury. However, watching from the sidelines was never an option for him. Instead of stepping back, he stepped up. He could often be seen supporting and coaching the teammates who were filling in as goalie, encouraging them, pushing them to improve, and sharing his knowledge and experience of the game. When he was eventually cleared to return to play, he rejoined the team with the same determination, helping lead them all the way to the Southern Maine Regional Final.

What makes Owen especially remarkable is his entrepreneurial spirit and work ethic. When he was younger, it was common to see him pushing or riding his lawn mower through town, taking care of neighbors' yards. He later started his own maple syrup business, even building his own boiler — an impressive accomplishment that highlights his initiative and mechanical skill. He has also pursued internship opportunities to expand his hands-on knowledge and learn new technical skills. Owen does not wait for opportunities; he creates them.

His dedication to his school and community is unmatched. He is empathetic, hardworking, and always willing to lend a hand — to adults and students alike. Owen's character, leadership, and determination will make him a valuable addition to any college campus and a deserving recipient of scholarship support.

I give Owen my highest recommendation and am confident he will continue to make a positive impact wherever his future takes him.

Sincerely,

Amanda Haines
