From FR. C.P.

As announced earlier, next Sunday (September 28), after the mass, we shall have the blessing of the picture of the newly canonized millennial saint Carlo Acutis and carry the picture to the parish center, where we shall formally install it in the hallway. Next Sunday's mass will be a special youth mass organized by our youth themselves. Please bring your children and grandchildren and encourage other young people to participate in the mass that day and in the procession which will be a sign of the love and appreciation for the model saint that Acutis is for all of us, particularly for our youth. Pray that our young people grow in holiness even as being growing children of our computerized, internet era. In this connection, let me also sincerely exhort all of you to take seriously the faith formation that we have begun as well as the OCIA that we have started last week, so we all earnestly work together towards our own spiritual wellbeing and that of our society and the world.

Catholic Living

The Dignity of the Human Person

"If God has become one of us, then that means something for the whole human race. Human nature itself is gifted with God's identification with us in our own nature...both the council (Vatican II) and John Paul II have insisted, 'Human nature, by the very fact that it was assumed, not absorbed, in him has been raised in us also to a dignity beyond compare' (Gaudium et Spes 22: Redemptor Hominis 8) This leads to a very strong sense in the church of the dignity of every human being precisely as human, and to a very strong social teaching with regard to human rights. The church's social teaching is not based only on simple humanism, but on a deep Christological motif: God has so identified with our humanity that each of us as human beings has been lifted to a dignity beyond compare. Thus, whatever disfigures or damages a human being is an insult to God's own self...All of this flows out of the incarnation, which is real and not a pretense on God's part. That God actually became one of us leads us to value all human beings as gifted with a tremendous dignity precisely as human."
