From FR. C.P.:

He is risen, alleluia! We are a resurrected people because of the resurrection of Jesus. Often, it is possible that we continue with our Good Fridays throughout our lives, without ever realizing that Christ has promised salvation/resurrection to us. It may be that we do not find time to count our blessings, often immersing ourselves in our negativities, shortcomings, pitfalls and sinfulness. There is always going to be a third day after every fall/death when we can rise encountering our risen Lord. In that sense, Easter is the story of our own survival. It is a proclamation of an act of our deep faith that 'on the third day there will be resurrection'. However troublesome our lives and our situations are, Easter gives us courage to say, 'And this too will pass'. May Christ the risen Savior be continually glorified in our thoughts, words, and deeds. Once again, a happy and grace-filled Easter to all of you.

Catholic Living:

Resurrection is the ultimate protest against the powers of death and despair. When we speak of sharing God's Unconditional Love, we aren't just talking about a warm feeling--we are talking about a transformative force that insists every person is a beloved child of the Divine. In this season, that love calls us to roll away the stones of isolation and shame that keep our neighbors trapped in the shadows. But love without action is incomplete. Our mission of Justice reminds us that while there is a time to mourn, there is also a time to build. We see the Risen Christ in the faces of those fighting for a living wage, in the activists protecting our planet, and in the sanctuary provided to the displaced. We believe that Justice is what love looks like in public. This season, we commit ourselves to dismantling the systems of oppression that seek to crucify the vulnerable...Let us be a people of the empty tomb, living out a faith that is a bold, inclusive, and revolutionary as the resurrection itself. thepalms.org
