From FR. C.P.:

Last Monday (May 25), we celebrated Memorial Day. Many of you may have traveled far or near to spend the long weekend in the company of your beloved ones. We had a special mass at our cemetery on that day. The Knights of Columbus had cleaned up the area and got ready the chairs and the table for the celebration of the Holy Eucharist. Julie Gehrig got ready the snacks and drinks for all, after the mass. We did remember in our prayers not only those three persons whose tombstones still stand inside the cemetery, but all the forty four people whose documented evidence of burial in that place we have with us. The cemetery was blessed by a special prayer and sprinkling of holy water. It was very impressive that many people showed up and participated in this special service. A discussion was held earlier, in fact a couple of years ago, regarding the possibility of fencing this cemetery and placing a sign board to show that the cemetery land belongs to St. Patrick's Catholic Church, Sidney, NE. Also, there was a question regarding whether burials could take place in this place in future. We need to discuss it at various proper forums before we can come up with a decision in this regard. I thank everyone sincerely for their participation in the day's celebration. God bless us all.

Catholic Living:

Beholding God Everywhere

The real gift of contemplative practice is to be happy and content, even when we are simply sitting on the porch, looking at a rock, or benevolently gazing at anything in its ordinariness. When we can see, accept, and say that every single act of creation is "just this," we allow it to work its wonder on us. So go learn, enjoy, and rest in inner contentment and positivity- a full reservoir of fresh water, both before what feels like success and after what we might experience as failure. Then we have the treasure that no one can take from us or give to us. We will be ready to be captured by many moments of awe-and we will be capable of the surrender that brings both foundational union and joy.
