Notes

Home-Based Learning is an instructional model in which students complete teacher-assigned academic work at home each Friday instead of attending school on campus.

- Assignments are sent home on Thursdays with clear directions and all materials needed.
- Students complete the work at home on Fridays as part of their regular weekly instruction.
- Work is returned to the teacher on Mondays for review, feedback, and record keeping.
- Assignments are graded and count toward students' academic progress and report card grades, just like in-class work.
