About the Album:

The Promise of You is the sixth studio album from New York-based jazz singer and songwriter Marcus Goldhaber, and by all measures his most prolific collection to date, pairing modern-meets-classic originals with reimagined standards. His intimate, expressive, story-driven vocals and refreshingly nuanced songwriting take listeners on a journey toward hope, swingin' in seamless collaboration with an outstanding band led by pianist and co-producer Art Hirahara. Exploring themes of desire, joy, love, playfulness, and partnership—having it, longing for it, and rediscovering it. This album swings and sways, lingers and longs for the listener to get lost in the journey toward companionship, fueled by hope and promise.

“One of his generation’s foremost purveyors of the Great American Songbook”

Marcus Goldhaber The Promise of You

ARTIST NOTE:

I loved making this album! It's playful, wistful, exciting, and full of joy. Some songs came together quickly and others evolved over years, however, they're all rooted in hope. In a time when so many are struggling, my wish is that this music lightens your heart, brings a smile, and reminds you that you're not alone. I move forward with gratitude, believing there is always The Promise of You.

“Goldhaber will have you giddy one moment, melancholy the next and loving every note!” ★ ★ ★ ★ PEOPLE

New York-based Jazz singer and songwriter Marcus Goldhaber is a Hot House Magazine and BroadwayWorld.com nominee for Best Male Vocalist, as well as a MAC Award nominee for Best Song. His signature velvet bari-tenor has been heard at Carnegie Hall, 54 Below, Birdland, Blue Note, Iridium and The Cutting Room; The Catalina (Los Angeles, California); The Smith Center (Las Vegas, Nevada); and the Sellersville Theater (Sellersville, Pennsylvania), where he opened for Jane Monheit.

Acclaimed by JazzTimes as “wonderfully imaginative” and by Jazziz as “exciting and fresh,” Goldhaber reinvents the Great American Songbook for the 21st century, infusing the classics with new vitality. His original songs, at once modern and timeless, captivate listeners with their emotional depth, irresistible melodies, and lyrical sophistication.

“Tasteful and hip, Goldhaber has a gorgeous and sensitive vocal quality [that] brings the lyric to life.” Jazz Improv Magazine. “Like a plate full of comfort food!” All About Jazz. To quote the Midwest Record, he is “as good as it gets!”

After 5 years as Creative Director and Co-founder of Harlem's acclaimed speakeasy jazz club, Room 623, he released his original holiday single, “I Can't Wait For Christmas” in 2025, which was hailed “A perfect fit!” by The JW Vibe. His new album, The Promise of You, was released May 1, 2026 and will be celebrated in NYC at both Mezzrow (7/16/26) and 54 Below (9/18/26).
