

John Waterhouse DVM, BVSc, CCRP

Bio:

About Dr. John Knight Waterhouse BVSc CCRP Founder, Veterinary Teaching Academy Dr. John Knight Waterhouse is a renowned leader in veterinary rehabilitation, pain management, and working dog care, with a deep commitment to advancing education and clinical excellence in the field. As the Founder of the Veterinary Teaching Academy, Dr. Waterhouse has dedicated his career to equipping veterinary professionals with cutting-edge rehabilitation techniques that enhance patient care and clinic success. Leadership & Advisory Roles Dr. Waterhouse actively serves on several prestigious veterinary advisory boards, where he contributes to the development of industry-leading treatment protocols, research initiatives, and educational programs.

His advisory roles include:

- Founder and Advisor, Quantum K9 Providing guidance on the integration of advanced monitoring technologies for working and service dogs, with a focus on enhancing performance, preventing overuse injuries, and supporting mission readiness through data-driven insights.
  - Board Member, International Veterinary Academy of Pain Management (IVAPM) – Supporting advancements in pain management strategies to improve patient outcomes.
  - Advisory Board Member, National Police Dog Foundation – Collaborating on the development of innovative strategies to support working police K9s, focusing on health, welfare, performance, and long-term sustainability of canine programs nationwide.
  - Advisory Board Member, Denver Metropolitan Zoo – Providing guidance on animal health, rehabilitation, and welfare strategies for exotic and domestic species.
- Advanced Education & Specialized Training Dr. Waterhouse's dedication to continuous learning has led him to pursue additional specialized training, further enhancing his expertise in veterinary rehabilitation, working dog medicine, and tactical K9 care.

His advanced education includes:

- PennVet Working Dog Practitioner Program – (Currently completing) A specialized certification focused on the health, conditioning, and injury prevention of working and service dogs, enabling him to support elite canine athletes, military K9s, and service animals.
- Instructor, K9 Medic Training Organization – Educating handlers, veterinarians, and first responders on emergency field care, injury prevention, and longevity strategies for working dogs.
- University of Tennessee Certified Canine Rehabilitation Practitioner (UT CCRP) Program – A rigorous, science-based certification in canine rehabilitation, advancing skills in therapeutic exercise, neuromuscular re-education, and pain management to enhance mobility and recovery in veterinary patients.

John Waterhouse DVM, BVSc, CCRP

Impact & Vision Through the Veterinary Teaching Academy, Dr. Waterhouse has pioneered Canine Rehab On Demand (CROD), a comprehensive rehabilitation program designed to empower clinics and pet owners with accessible, structured rehabilitation protocols. His mission is to bridge the gap between traditional veterinary practice and advanced rehabilitation techniques, ensuring that every patient—whether a senior pet, a recovering athlete, or a tactical K9—receives the highest standard of care. Dr. Waterhouse remains a sought-after speaker, educator, and advocate for pain management, rehabilitation, and integrative veterinary medicine. His work continues to influence the industry, providing veterinary professionals with the tools and knowledge needed to elevate their practice and improve patient outcomes.