To Whom it may concern,

I have known Miguel Maldonado around two decades. I have owned several IT consulting and IT headhunting companies concurrently. During this time, I have found that when given a task, Miguel is a self-starter, manages his time well, has great listening skills and delivers a thoughtful, quality product, on schedule.

I have not only used Miguel's services for my businesses, I have referred him to many of my clients. That referral always makes me look good because of the work that he does. Both personally and professionally, he is a great find.

If I could keep him busy enough, I would be honored to have him work on my team full time. If you have an opportunity to work with him as a customer or employer, I highly suggest you do not let this one get away. He will stay on your short list of skilled and trusted contacts.

Sincerely,

Robert Brake, CEO
