 - Austenitic
 - Metallic Nonmagnetic
- Chromium 18%
 - Luster, durability, and corrosion resistance
- Nickel 8% minimum
 - Brighter (chrome-like tone)
 - Hardness and strength
 - Corrosion resistance
- Franke® has primarily 10% Nickel
 - Excellent corrosion resistance

GRADE 304 and 316 → What's different?

Grade 304

- Most common of all grades
 - Corrosion resistance
 - Easily manipulated/welded
 - Minimum nickel content of 8%
 - Higher quality - 10%

Grade 316

- Primarily industrial applications
 - 17% Chromium / 12% Nickel
 - 3% Molybdenum is added
 - Corrosion resistance
 - Used to manufacture pumps & high heat furnace parts

Gauge

- Raw thickness; Not finished product
- "Thickness" of sheet metal
 - Ranges from 30-8 gauge
 - Higher gauge = thinner sheet
 - Lower gauge = thicker sheet
- Most sinks: 18-22 gauge
- Lower gauge / Thicker steel
 - Less denting and bowing
 - Reduced noise
 - Reduced vibrations with garbage disposal

Thickness Chart

16 Gauge		↓ 1.5 mm (0.0595")
18 Gauge		↓ 1.2 mm (0.0480")
20 Gauge		↓ 0.9 mm (0.0355")
22 Gauge		↓ 0.7 mm (0.0291")

Choosing the Right Gauge

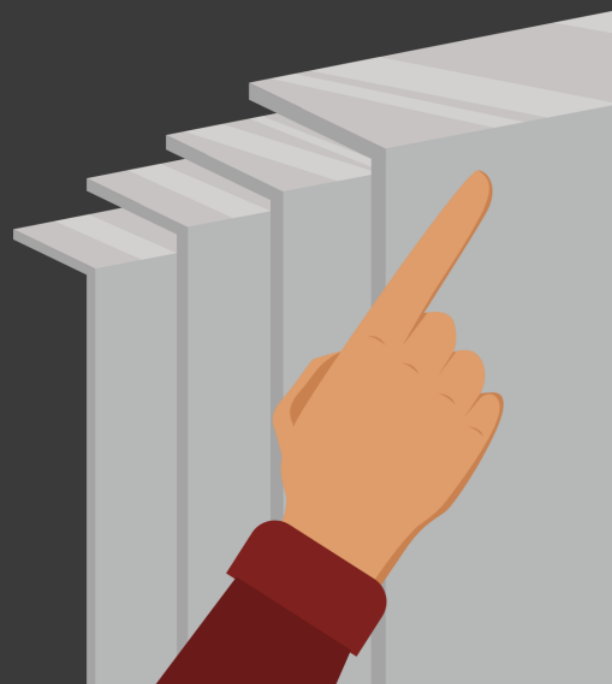

The best gauge for a stainless steel sink depends on your needs and budget.

If you want a durable sink that will last for many years, choose a 16- or 18-gauge sink.

If you are on a budget, a 20- or 22-gauge sink may be a good option.

Karran® Color Disclaimer

- Most quartz sinks have defining line between the walls and the base of the bowl.
- Quartz crystals and colored resins in the walls of the sink compress differently under the heat and pressure of molding. The base of the bowl is exposed to greater compression and may result in a slight color difference between the base of the bowl and the walls.
- The difference in finish increases the refractive light contrast when light hits the surface.

A professional fabricator is recommended to do this undermount application in laminate.

This is something that is installed as tops are made - cannot be added once tops are installed on job site.

VANITY DRAINS

Vanity sink drains would come with or be ordered with the customer's bathroom faucet(s) elsewhere. We have limited access to vanity sink drains and they are special order.

A TIP ON TALL FAUCETS

If installing a tall faucet in a laminate top be aware that because of their height there is a higher chance of water splashing back and potentially leaking into the core of the top at the backside. If a tall faucet is desired for a laminate top, a postform style or coved backsplash in laminate is best. Extra care may be needed in drying the tops after use due to splashing.
