PROGRESS & GROWTH

Founded in 1888 and incorporated in 1929 as a 400-acre town, Buckeye's current land area of 640 square miles makes it geographically the largest city in Arizona. The cotton, alfalfa and maize fields are still here, interspersed with housing developments and booming businesses.

Today, Buckeye is the country's fastest growing city (U.S. Census Bureau 2020). Buckeye is experiencing tremendous growth including new residential and business development, and exciting ideas on becoming a model 21st century city.

Located just 35 miles west of Phoenix, Buckeye is convenient to work, sightseeing and an exciting nightlife, yet far enough away to retain a comfortable small town feeling. Residents can take advantage of offerings found in a metropolitan city and then return to the quiet comforts of home. Residents are proud to call Buckeye home and have found a great place to live, work, play and discover the best Arizona has to offer.

Population figures reflect the tremendous growth the City is experiencing. The updated Census recorded Buckeye's population as over 100,000 residents. The residents of Buckeye are hugely invested in this community and strive to make it the most ideal place to live, work and raise a family. Despite the vast growth, Buckeye has managed to maintain a small-town feel.

The growth is not just a residential development. Sundance Town Center, Sundance Crossing, The Market on Broadway and Village Grove at Verrado are home to a number of small retail businesses and restaurants, as well as large national retailers, banks, restaurant chains and retail outlets. The southwest corner of Dean and Yuma is home to the Justice Court, Buckeye Police and Fire Departments and the Coyote Branch Library.

Educational opportunities include the West-MEC campus, the ASU Entrepreneur Innovation Center, and the Grand Canyon University bachelor degree program. Estrella Mountain Community College Buckeye Educational Center offers classes in what used to be the original Buckeye Union High School.

Each day, more than 75,000 cars pass through Buckeye on Interstate 10, making the frontage an ideal location for digital monument and billboard signage opportunities.

The City's unique partnership with the State Department of Water Resources and Developers has determined that the amount of water in the Hassayampa River Basin west of White Tank Mountains is able to provide our growing city with ample water in the future. The Hassayampa River Basin is the largest untapped aquifer in Arizona. Buckeye is ready and prepared for the future as we continue to grow!

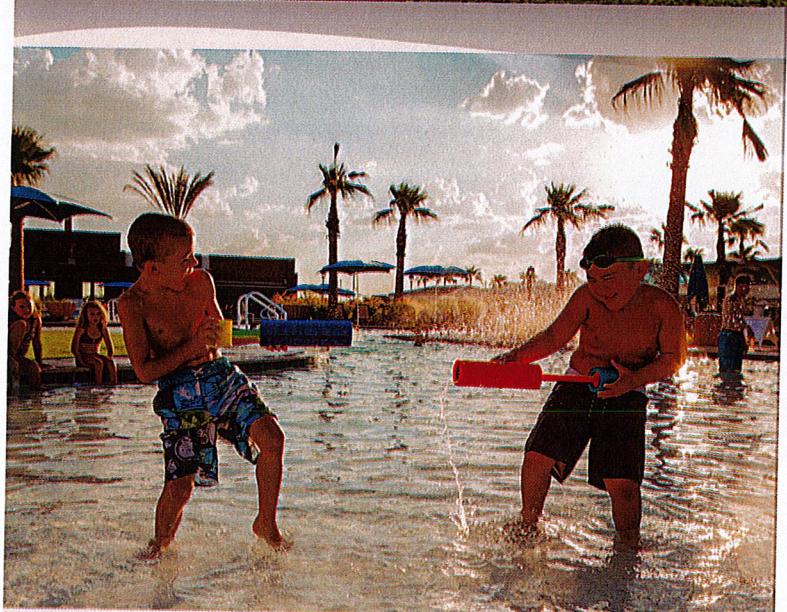

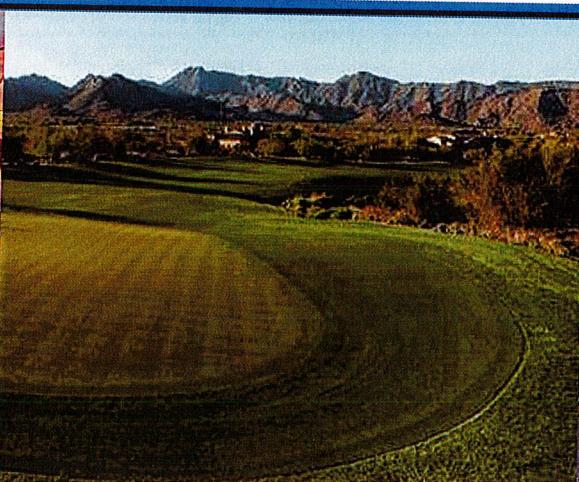

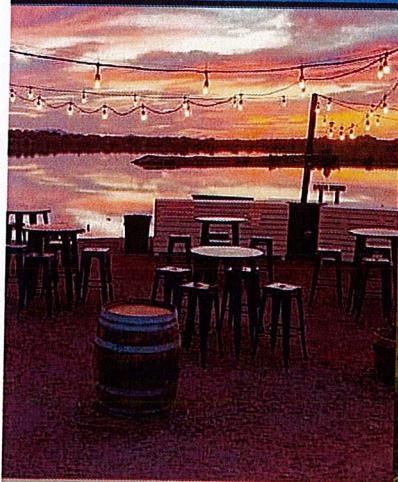

BUCKEYE'S HISTORIC MAIN STREET

Monroe Avenue, once old U.S. Highway 80, is Buckeye's historic main street. A stretch of the original roadbed is still in use where Monroe Avenue dead ends onto Apache. Old U.S. Highway 80 was originally called the Dixie Overland Highway or the Broadway of America. Before 1926, developers and towns scrambled to be on a coast-to-coast route. The Dixie Overland Highway was the first all-year, coast-to-coast roadway. Since many of these highways shared the same roadbed through parts of the country, people began to be confused by the colorful names given these routes. In 1926, the Federal government stepped in and replaced the names with a numerical system. Old U.S. Highway 80 started at Tybee Island, Georgia and crossed the country entering Arizona near Douglas, continuing through Tucson, Phoenix and Buckeye, south to Gila Bend, and exiting the state at Yuma. Its western terminus was San Diego.

EDUCATION

Arizona is a right to choose state for education. Parents are provided the right to choose from a wide variety of school options, including public, charter, private, online or home education. Expanding school choice is the single best strategy for improving education for all children and the State of Arizona proudly supports this initiative. Arizona is a national leader in providing parents with these options.

Living in the City of Buckeye is no exception...offering 9 public school districts, a variety of private and charter schools and opportunities for career-directed education through

ENVIRONMENT

In spite of the heat and minimal rainfall, the Sonoran Desert is one of the most diverse ecosystems in North America. Among the wildlife living in the Sonoran Desert are mountain lions, bobcats, javelina, mule deer, coyotes, ring-tailed cats and even bighorn sheep. Smaller creatures such as gila monsters, desert tortoises, roadrunners, quail, jackrabbits and cottontails, many of which are easily spotted, thrive here.

A wide variety of desert plants ranging from mesquite and palo verde trees to brittlebrush, and of course, the mighty saguaro, happily call the desert home. Cacti and creosote flourish, along with a wide array of wildflowers, making their annual debut in early spring and again occasionally after the beginning of the monsoon season.

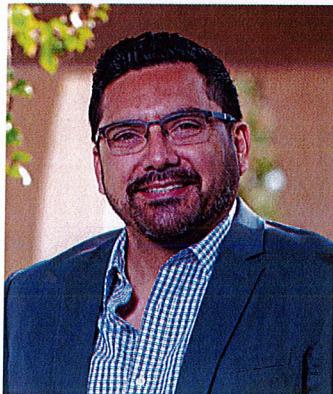

The diversity and quantity of birds migrating through each year make bird watching one of the most popular activities in the desert. Riparian areas provide the best backdrop for viewing raptors, cardinals, phainopepla, wrens, orioles, curve-billed thrashers, and of course doves. In Buckeye, you may see them at Robbin's Butte Wildlife Area, White Tank Mountains Regional Park and Skyline Regional Park.

WEATHER

Living in the surroundings dominated by a desert climate is an adjustment for many new residents. Buckeye sits in a micro-climate somewhat different than Phoenix, with less rain than the Phoenix average, higher summer temperatures, cooler winter nights and more days of sunshine.

Phoenix average spring temperatures range from 48 to 72 F and summer temperatures range from 65 to 108 F. Annual precipitation is 7.6 inches; and the average is 36.4 days with precipitation. The average wind speed is 6 mph and the annual average is 325 days of sunshine. The monsoon season, which occurs between mid-June and mid-September, brings powerful rain and dust storms. Humidity ranges from a record low of two percent to as high as 78 percent, with the annual average at 50 percent in the mornings and 23 percent in the afternoons. July and August are the months of highest afternoon humidity due to monsoon.

Buckeye Valley Chamber of Commerce

A message from the Chairman of the Board

John Rico

The Buckeye Valley Chamber of Commerce is excited to welcome you to our community. We are proud of our 134-year agricultural history, rich culture and robust manufacturing infrastructure plan. Our future is bright, and our focus is set on growth. With a population of over 100,000 people, and rising, it is an exciting time to experience this era of growth in Buckeye. We hope you will decide to call Buckeye home and become a part of our community.

According to the 2020 U.S. Census Bureau, Buckeye continues to be the fastest growing city in the U.S. with populations of 75,000 or more. We are extremely proud of this growth and recognition! From our farms and fields, to our local dairies, our strong agricultural history is still evident. Our beautiful communities and commercial developments are lending a hand to the future of all types of industry and commerce. Business is growing in Buckeye and the Chamber actively encourages our residents and visitors to shop, dine and engage with our local businesses.

Buckeye offers educational opportunities for people of all ages with the addition of the West-MEC/Estrella Community College campus. We also offer many opportunities for you and your family to become more involved in our community from youth programs to senior services, and organizations such as the Woman's Club, Friends of the Library, Elk's Lodge, Kiwanis, Lion's Club, American Legion, VFW and Rotary International, we feel sure we offer something for everyone.

Looking for a little culture? We have several family-friendly festivals and events each year that are guaranteed to be a good time for all. In the fall, events like Cottonfest, Rockin' & Shoppin', Sangria & Shopping, Rock Show, Car Show, Sangria at Sunset, and Spooktacular for Halloween are wildly popular among our residents. In December, downtown Buckeye lights up with excitement during the Glow On Monroe Electric Light Parade and Winter Wonderland festivities. The City proudly hosts other annual events like the Spring Celebration, The Buckeye Marathon, The Buckeye Air Fair and the crowd pleasing Helzapoppin' PRCA Rodeo. In the summer, we have a July 4th Celebration.

The Buckeye Valley Chamber of Commerce building is located at 508 E. Monroe Avenue and is also the home to the Arizona Office of Tourism Visitor Center. This historic building once served as a firehouse, a courthouse and jail. The hose tower and old jail cells are still useful storage space in the office today.

The purpose of the Chamber is to provide leadership, support local business and build strong partnerships. We are dedicated to promoting business, education and community interest of all who are touched by this amazing city with a promising future. Buckeye is a wonderful place to live, work, play and learn.

Buckeye Valley History

In 1877, Thomas Newt Clanton set out from Creston, Iowa, with a party of six men, three women and ten children, bound for Arizona. Clanton suffered from ongoing health problems and believed the Arizona climate would improve his condition. The travelers settled near the area that was eventually to become the Town of Buckeye. It was a good move for him as he lived in Arizona for another 49 years before his death at age 82.

Development in the Buckeye Valley received its first great boost with the construction of the Buckeye Canal. In 1884, Malin Monroe Jackson, along with Joshua L. Spain and Henry Mitchell, began building a canal. Jackson named the canal in honor of his native state of Ohio, the "Buckeye State." Completed in 1886, Thomas Clanton helped build 10 miles of the canal running adjacent to his homestead. In 1887, Clanton applied for a post office to be established in the new community, and in 1888, the United States Postal Service granted the request, naming the new station "Buckeye" after the canal. Thomas Clanton and his family were the first permanent Anglo residents of Buckeye. That same year, Thomas Clanton teamed with Phoenix surgeon Oscar L. Mahoney, and subdivided 60 acres of their land. A business district was established between 4th and 6th Streets on Centre Avenue. A town site was platted and Clanton named the new town Sidney, though why he chose that name remains a mystery. However, because of the significance of the canal, over time the town became known as Buckeye, and the name was legally changed in 1910. Also in 1888, William "Bucky" O'Neil and Associates organized the Buckeye Irrigation Company, renaming the Buckeye Canal Company, and had it certified by the Territorial Secretary. Bucky O'Neil later went on to become one of the famous Rough Riders.

Advances in transportation put Buckeye on the Map. In 1910, the Arizona Eastern Railroad came to Buckeye; in 1911, the first automobile; by 1912, a steam rail line connected with Phoenix; and by 1915, a state highway. The coming of the railroad was so significant that the business district was moved to accommodate the location of the railroad station.

As a result, Buckeye was booming! By 1912, major buildings were constructed along with the expansion of the business community. Buckeye was incorporated in 1929 and included 440 acres, or less than one square mile. The first mayor was Hugh M. Watson, founder of the Buckeye Valley Bank. His son, Hugh Watson, Jr. served as mayor from 1956 to 1958.

In 1935, the Buckeye Chamber of Commerce started the Helzapoppin' Days, which has become a local tradition. The festivities included street dances, a parade, a carnival and a rodeo. Proceeds were given to local churches to distribute to the needy and for scholarships. Celebrities such as cowboy singing star Gene Autry attended these events.

In addition, the Town Park is home to our Aquatic Center with an Olympic-sized swimming pool complete with a 35-foot-high water slide and other water features that keep everyone cool and relaxed. Take advantage of the volleyball pits, ball fields, picnic tables and skate park. Any of the local restaurants will provide a great picnic meal for the park. For more information, visit the City's website www.buckeyeaz.gov.

ROBBINS BUTTE WILDLIFE AREA

The Robbins Butte Wildlife Area (RBWA) is located approximately seven miles southwest of Buckeye, Arizona, comprising approximately 1681 acres. Home to a variety of species, Robin's Butte attracts birdwatchers throughout the year.

A combination of wildlife food crops, natural foods and nesting habitat attracts many breeding white-winged (Zenaida asiatica) and mourning doves (Z. Macroura). An average combined number of 5,000 doves usually are present at RBWA before the September hunt. Amphibians and reptiles also are common. A minimum of 19 reptile species reside at RBWA. A common mammal species found on the RBWA is the Ringtail (Bassariscus astutus), also known as the Ringtail cat or Miner's cat.

RBWA is the center of the annual Gila River Christmas Bird Count, and over 115 species of winter-resident birds have been observed in the vicinity. In addition, many raptors winter in and near RBWA, including the White-tailed Kite (Elanus leucurus). The summer avian community has not been counted, but species numbers probably exceed those of winter.

Special Status Species occurring on or near the Robbins Butte Wildlife Area have been identified through the Department's Heritage Data Management system and are listed below. This includes the federally endangered Yuma clapper rail (Rallus longirostris yumanensis), and the Western yellow-billed cuckoo (Coccyzus americanus occidentalis), a federal listed candidate species. Those special status species that potentially occur on the RBWA include the Great egret (Ardea alba), the Snowy egret (Egretta thula), and the Western yellow bat (Lasiurus xanthinus).

SKYLINE REGIONAL PARK

The City of Buckeye's Skyline Regional Park is an 8,700-acre mountain preserve located in the southern White Tank Mountains. The park's convenient access from I-10, two miles north of the Watson Road/I-10 interchange, makes it immediately available to the entire Phoenix metropolitan area.

Its central location within Buckeye, makes it a local point of pride and a central focus of Buckeye's recreational and economic development efforts. The park features 16 miles of trails for hikers, mountain bikers and equestrians. Picnic areas and camping facilities are also available. Entry to the park is free. Seven camping sites are also available to rent along with ADA Accessible Campsite and free parking.

WHITE TANK MOUNTAIN REGIONAL PARK

Nearly 30,000 acres makes this the largest regional park in Maricopa County. Most of the park is made up of the rugged and beautiful White Tank Mountains on the Valley's west side.

The range, deeply serrated with ridges and canyons, rises sharply from its base to peak at over 4,000 feet. Infrequent heavy rains cause flash flood waters to plunge through the canyons and pour onto the plain. These torrential flows, pouring down chutes and dropping off ledge, have scoured out a series of depressions, or tanks, in the white granite rock below, thus giving the mountains their name. Offering excellent opportunities for biking, camping, hiking, equestrian activities, picnicking, stargazing, petroglyph exploration and geo-caching, this park has a variety of ways to get your family into the great outdoors!

The Odyssey Preparatory Family of Schools offers a comprehensive K-12 educational program which allows our Scholars to explore their interests and focus on critical thinking in a safe, nurturing environment. Our Scholars leave Odyssey with a growth mindset and the critical skills necessary for success on whatever path they choose to take.
