Students who come to live at John XXIII College receive much more than accommodation. They become part of a vibrant College community where they will be mixing with others from diverse backgrounds, nationalities and beliefs and will make long-lasting friendships and networks. In order to gain the most benefit from the College structure, the students should be prepared to contribute their talents towards one or several of the areas mentioned, be it academic, sporting, social or cultural, or several of these. They also have to learn to live in an atmosphere of tolerance, care and mutual respect and support.

Please comment on the application with reference to the information given about College life. Please refer to their suitability for community living and readiness for university: (150 words or less)

Please indicate in the table below how you would rate the student in comparison with peers (click appropriate)
