Base Dough
Our pizza uses a dough prepared with biga and cereals containing gluten (rye, barley, oats, spelt, or their hybrid varieties) and related products.
Before being stretched, topped, and served, the dough is allowed to rest for at least twelve hours, followed by a further six hours of leavening.
It contains a significant proportion of flour with a minimum strength of W 380 (an indicator of flour quality), along with a portion of whole wheat flour and soy flour, to make it more digestible and crisp.

Whole Wheat Dough
Prepared using the same process as the base dough, but with eighty percent “Type 1” flour.

It contains a significant proportion of flour with a minimum strength of W 380 (an indicator of flour quality), along with a portion of whole wheat flour and a portion of soy flour, to make it more digestible and crisp.
