When planning your recreation/vacation in the mountains and making reservations months or even a year in advance you are assuming some risk. There are numerous things that can go wrong. There is the possibility of forest fires, smoke, flood, drought, road closures, snow storms, rain, wind, pandemic, personal emergencies or many other unforeseen events. Our cancel policy is as its stated above, unless we are able to rebook those days. Several large cabins there are no refund's after January 1st. If you are concerned about something going wrong during your vacation we urge you to talk to an insurance agent about getting trip insurance to cover any unforeseen issues.
